SLAIN GIRL'S MOTHER HERE TO "TELL ALL"

Mrs. Edgar Linnell rode from Hyannis to Boston to-day in the same combination baggage and passenger coach which conveyed the body of her murdered daughter, Avis Linnell, from Boston to Hyannis yesterday.

Mrs. Linnell wore mourning, and her face was covered with a black veil. She was accompanied only by her daughter, Mrs. Vita McLean. The father drove the family over to the station from Hyannisport, and the daughters, Edith and Helen, kissed their mother good-by just before the train started.

"I SHALL TELL ALL I KNOW," SAYS MOTHER.

Mrs. Linnell was met at the South station by Police Captain Armstrong, who escorted them to Pemberton square.

"I shall tell all I know, everything, to the grand jury," said Mrs. Linnell to the reporters who asked for a statement at the Hyannis station.

"My mother cannot talk to anyone and I have absolutely nothing to say," said Mrs. McLean.

They entered the waiting train and took a seat at the back of the car so that they would be under less observation.

"God go with you," said Mr. Linnell as the train started, and then he mounted his carriage and drove his two older daughters home.

At Yarmouth it was necessary to change to the main line, and here the Linnells unconsciously entered the car which had carried the body of Avis Linnell to Hyannis the day before.

The car filled here with pretty girls going on a few stations to high school. The youngsters never glanced at the black figure sitting erect and silent with her gaze turned out of the window nor the sad-faced woman in the blue dress alongside, but chattered gaily, shouting from one seat to another and cross the aisles.

They were all around the old lady when they began to discuss the Linnell case, which is the sole topic of conversation on the Cape.

Mother Weeps on Train.

Every word must have cut into the heart of Mrs. Linnell, but she made no sign, though Mrs. McLean frowned and stirred uncomfortably.

The conductor stopped this sort of torture by whispering to several of the girls as he took tickets that the mother of Avis Linnell was in the car.

The torture was now one of eyes, for the school girls stared, sympathetically, it is true, but curiously and penetratingly. Then they talked in whispers.

Through her veil one could see that Mrs. Linnell was crying. Probably the joyous youngsters made her think of Avis, hardly more than a school girl herself and accounted the prettiest girl in Hyannis.

Mrs. McLean opened a magazine and pretended to read. During the entire journey mother and daughter did not exchange a word except when a newsboy came through the train at Buzzard's Bay with the Boston morning papers.

"Shall I buy the papers?" she asked.

Mrs. Linnell shook her head and the newsboy made no sale.

At Buzzard's Bay most of the young people left the car, and as the word had been passed along that the mother of Avis Linnell was there, a sympathetic silence was preserved until the train steamed into the South station.

Secret Marriage Story.

Mrs. Linnell and Mrs. McLean walked down the platform hesitatingly, for they expected to be met by some one from the district attorney's office. They were compelled to pause half a minute outside the gate of the track before Captain Armstrong came hurrying up and took them to a waiting taxicab.

Mrs. McLean is expected to tell of the acquaintance between her daughter and Richeson and especially to testify that he was a frequent visitor at her house during the past Summer, a statement that Richeson has denied. She will also testify that Avis never told her of a broken engagement and insisted all along that she was engaged to the minister, although she was wearing a plain gold band instead of the engagement ring which he took from her last Winter to get cleaned, as he said.

Mrs. Linnell has told friends that Avis believed herself married to Richeson. If the State can establish a secret marriage or an impression on Avis's part that she was the wife of Richeson, it will establish a motive for murder stronger even than the one upon which the case is now based.

Deck the Grave With Flowers.

Although it was generally known last night in Hyannis that the Linnells were going to Boston on the morning train, few of the townspeople were up early enough to see them off.

Hyannis is not like the real country, where everybody arises at 4 or 5 a. m. The people who live there all the year around are few of them farmers. Most of them are well-to-do persons who prefer the country to the city, and others make enough out of the Summer visitors to support them comfortably all Winter. Hyannis really doesn't awake until after 7 a. m. Therefore there was no one at the station at the 6:10 train, upon which the Linnells were expected to go, and even at 7:25 there were few people at the station besides those who were departing on the train.

Before the Linnell family left Hyannisport they drove into the cemetery, where Mrs. McLean got out and placed a bouquet of flowers culled by Helen, the fifteen-year-old sister, the afternoon previous, upon the grave of Avis, now reposing again in her final resting place. A woman who lived near the cemetery saw them drive down there in the early morning, but no one else witnessed what must have been a very pathetic scene in the lonely graveyard.

Then they drove to the station.

SHIBE PARK, Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—Most of Philadelphia's population and a good share of New York's crowded into Ben Shibe's big baseball stadium this afternoon to see the Athletics win the world's championship title again or the Giants down the Mackmen once more.

Of course, the majority of the bugs were pulling for a Philadelphia victory and the end of the strife. But this morning's train brought over enough Gothamites to make themselves heard and the Giants were given a welcome almost as noisy that given the Macks.

The day was perfect, which was more than the magnates deserved after dragging out the season to such a length. It was cool in the morning, but the sun had got in some good work and made it comfortable at noontime.

Everybody was asking one question. Who would pitch for New York? McGraw refused to answer it an hour before play time, saying he would not know until his candidates had warmed up. Some of the Giant players were guessing that George Wiltse would be the selection, because he had served only one round against the Athletics and was practically new to them. Others doped it out that Leon Ames, who showed to great advantage in four innings yesterday would get the big assignment; there were still others figuring that the New York leader would send Mathewson back at them.

Marquard, Wiltse, Crandall, Ames and Matty all warmed up and every one of them was hoping he would be favored with the job. There was small doubt in anyone's mind about Mack's choice.

Eddie Plank was picked and the whole town thought he would stop the Giants just as easily as he did on his first appearance. Mack was saving Bender to use in case another game was necessary.

CZAR IS SHOT, VIENNA RUMOR

VIENNA, Oct. 26.—The Czar was reported here at noon to have been wounded by a revolver shot while automobiling.

The report has it that his chauffeur was killed by the assassin. The rumor is not generally believed.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Alarmist rumors emanating from Vienna and Berlin to-day, stating that Czar Nicholas of Russia had been assassinated, were discredited here in official circles.

It was said that there was no foundation for them. According to the sensational reports the Czar had been shot to death while in an automobile.

SUMMER COTTAGES AT GLOUCESTER ROBBED

GLOUCESTER, Oct. 26.—No clew has been discovered by the police to the thieves who looted three Summer cottages at Grapevine Cove. The cottages are those of George Williamson of Brookline and Frank P. Wonson and Joseph O. Proctor of this city. Following so soon after the recent robberies of cottages at Eastern Point these breaks are believed to be the work of an organized gang.

SILENCERS ASKED FOR MALDEN CROWERS

Frank M. Swain's roosters are not a bit popular with his neighbors in Melrose Highlands, and urging that they crow too loudly and at hours when all well-brought-up and well-disposed roosters have their heads under their wings, the neighbors have banded together and presented a petition to the Board of Aldermen to pass an ordinance forbidding the keeping of roosters, hens or chickens with a radius of one and a quarter miles from the Melrose City Hall.

PASTOR RICHESON'S DEFENCE.

Attorneys representing Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson have outlined the evidence which will be presented to prove he was not responsible for the death of Avis Linnell. The defence will seek to show:

First, an alibi—that is, that Richeson did not see Avis Linnell from the day he bought the cyanide of potassium until the day of her death.

Second, Richeson did buy the poison from Druggist Hahn. But he bought it for the purpose specified—to kill a dog that was about to have puppies.

Third, that the dog was killed and the body of the dog will be produced in court. The clergyman killed a cat, it will be shown, at the same time.

Fourth, Richeson loved Avis Linnell as a very dear friend. He learned that she was in trouble and his meeting with her in Boston previous to the time the poison was bought was simply that of a clergyman who was solicitous as to the welfare of the girl and who was trying to help her.

The special session of the Suffolk County Grand Jury convened to take up the murder of Avis Linnell, which is charged to the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, her former pastor and fiance, began a consideration of the case at 10 o'clock to-day in the Pemberton square courthouse, with Mrs. Edgar Linnell, the mother of the dead girl, as one of the first witnesses.

A great crowd had gathered on the steps of the big courthouse, in the corridors and in the square. Many women were in the crowd. They were there to catch a sight, if possible, of some of the witnesses in this great poison murder mystery. Some of the women, it was noticed, had been in attendance at all of the great murder trials in and around Boston in recent years.

Charles Gane Foreman.

Twenty-one of the twenty-three members of the Grand Jury reported before Judge Sanderson, William H. Emerson and Patrick J. Joy being absent. Charles Gane was selected as foreman of the Grand Jury, and John B. Clifford, clerk.

District Attorney Pelletier appeared in the Grand Jury room and made a statement to the members of the body, after which the witnesses were admitted, one at a time, and their statements under oath taken down.

Mrs. Linnell, who came from her home at Hyannis to-day, was accompanied by her married daughter, Mrs. William McLean, of Brockton. It was at the wedding of this daughter that Avis Linnell first met the Rev. Mr. Richeson, who is accused of poisoning her. The mother of the dead girl, clad in deep mourning, was escorted by Captain Armstrong of Boston police headquarters. She appeared weak and unstrung and was barely able to walk.

In order that she might avoid the crowd in the front of the main entrance to the courthouse, Captain Armstrong took Mrs. Linnell and her daughter through the Somerset street entrance. She was taken into the District Attorney's office and from there into the Grand Jury room, which is on the second floor of the courthouse.

Newspaper men who thronged the Court House were requested to-day not to linger about the district attorney's office. Witnesses were instructed by the district attorney's office not to talk to anyone as to what was their connection with the case.

It became known to-day that a most important conference took place at 1 a. m. to-day at the house of M. Grant Edmands, the father of Miss Violet Edmands, to whom Richeson is engaged. At this conference, besides Mr. Edmands, Mrs. Edmands and Miss Violet Edmands, were Thomas Varland Richeson, the father of the accused clergyman; Douglas Richeson, another son, and attorneys in the case.

The defence of Richeson, which had been formulated yesterday at the office of Lawyer Philip R. Dunbar, was discussed, it is believed. Superintendent Robert Burns of the Burns Detective Bureau, which has been retained by the defence, would not discuss the conference to-day.

The first witness to testify before the grand jury was Medical Examiner Leary. He has conducted the autopsies and examinations of the dead girl's body. When the medical examiner first examined the body he gave it as his opinion that the girl had committed suicide. Later facts came to his attention that caused him to believe that it was a case of deliberate murder.

Crowd Around Examiner.

When the medical examiner emerged from the grand jury room he had a hard time to get away from the crowd that surged about him, not so much to question him, apparently, as to get a look at him. Not being of the notoriety-seeking sort, the medical examiner made his escape from the building by way of an elevator as quickly as possible.

These are the lines along which the attorneys will fight for the life and liberty of the clergyman prisoner:

First, an alibi—that is, that Richeson did not see Avis Linnell from the day he bought the cyanide of potassium until the day of her death.

Second, Richeson did buy the poison from Druggist Hahn. But he bought it for the purpose specified—to kill a dog that was about to have puppies.

Third, that the dog was killed and the body of the dog will be produced in court. The clergyman killed a cat; it will be shown, at the same time.

Fourth, Richeson loved Avis Linnell as a very dear friend. He learned that she was in trouble and his meeting with her in Boston previous to the time the poison was bought was simply that of a clergyman who was solicitous as to the welfare of the girl and who was trying to help her.

Satisfied of Pastor's Innocence.

The father and other relatives of Richeson, as well as M. Grant Edmands, are satisfied of the innocence of the accused clergyman. This feeling was increased when the prisoner in the Charles street jail stood there with tears streaming from his eyes and looking through the mist into his father's eyes, cried:

"Father, I'm innocent—I'm innocent!"

"I believe it, my boy," replied the father. "You couldn't have done it."

Chief Dugan, in a statement to-day, intimated that the police have failed to place Richeson and Avis Linnell together on the Saturday of her death. It was on that day that they believe Richeson gave her the cyanide of potassium, with which she killed herself.

Chief Dugan said that Richeson might have sent it to the girl by mail. So far there has been nothing established, so far as is known, to substantiate this theory. It was thought that a man would hardly take chances with a messenger boy in sending poison to anyone.

Enough Poison to Kill Ten.

It has been announced that Medical Examiner Leary found enough poison in the body of the dead choir singer to kill ten men or women. It was hinted today thar the second examination of the body, made in the early morning hours yesterday, disclosed some new facts that are not entirely in consonance with the conditions as ascertained at the autopsy. Just what these were the police are carefully guarding.

About fifteen witnesses were summoned to attend the special sitting of the Grand Jury to-day to testify in the poison mystery. One witness, the girl who says that Avis Linnell told her that she dined with Richeson on the Saturday afternoon before she took the poison, and that he gave her a headache powder, will not testify, as the police wish to keep her identity a secret.

Father to Return Home Soon.

Among those summoned to give testimony in the secret proceedings were William Hahn, of whom it is asserted Richeson bought cyanide of potassium; Medical Examiner Leary, who conducted an

LONDON, Oct. 26.—A Pekin dispatch to the Times says that an imperial rescript confirms the appointment of Francis Arthur Aglen, deputy inspector-general of the imperial maritime customs, China, as the successor of the late Sir Robert Hart as inspector-general. China has notified the legations that she will pay the November instalment of the Boxer indemnity.

FLORIDA SHAKER REMAINS IN JAIL

KISSIMMEE, Fla., Oct. 26.—His freedom on bail pending action by the Grand Jury is denied to Egbert Gillette, the Shaker who with Elizabeth Sears admitted giving chloroform to Sadie Marchant at the latter's request. Miss Sears is out on bail. Sadie Marchant was "helped" out of this life by her coreligionists, according to their statement, at her request, because she was in the last stages of consumption.

"My Boy," By Thomas Varland Richeson of Virginia in next SUNDAY'S AMERICAN

Ever since the death of little Avis Linnell of Hyannis the New England public has been anxious to know "all about" the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, the young pastor now locked up on the charge of murder. Those who would know all about the Rev. Mr. Richeson will have to read the Boston Sunday AMERICAN. Thomas Varland Richeson, of Richeson Mountain, Amherst, Virginia, is writing the "Story of My Boy," EXCLUSIVELY for the Sunday AMERICAN. The FIRST INSTALMENT will appear in the Sunday AMERICAN of October 29. The elder Richeson did not know Avis Linnell. He will write about the boyhood, home life, school days and college experiences of his favorite son. He tells the story in the manly, straightforward way to be expected from a typical Virginian. After a glimpse at the first pages of the chronicle, we are ready to promise Sunday AMERICAN readers the most enthralling story that has yet been written about the accused clergyman. The story is illustrated by photographs available to no other newspaper. If you read its first paragraph you will want to read every word

FOSS ASSAILS TARIFF EVILS

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 26—Governor Foss, in speeches here and in the City Halls in Holyoke and Chicopee, made one of the strongest attacks of his campaign on the Republican tariff policy. He declared "the way to revise is to revise."

A proper reduction of the tariff, the Governor declared, would steady American trade and safeguard the interests of employes. He received an enthusiastic reception, many of his auditors being mill hands.

Governor Foss and the other Democratic candidates have closed their tour of the Western counties.

More than 1,200 persons were packed into the Court Square Theatre here to listen to the Governor, while at Chicopee about 800 were in the audience at City Hall, and at Holyoke the crowd in City Hall was close to 2,000.

Big Crowd at Holyoke.

This was due to the fact that feeling in that city over the injection of the Farr Alpacca Company into the campaign has aroused great feeling and the population of the city is dividing into factions as a result. It was expected that Governor Foss would have something to say on the matter, but he did not, Mr. Walsh, the candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, having been delegated to the task.

James H. Vahey, Charles S. Hamlin and Augustus L. Thorndike, the latter the party candidate for auditor, joined the tourists to-night, the former speaking at all three places, as did also Mr. Hamlin. The other speakers were the Governor, Mr. Walsh, Frank J. Donahue, candidate for secretary of State; Charles B. Strecker, candidate for auditor; Senator John H. Malley, of this city, and John H. Moriarty of Chicopee.

The rally in this city was presided over by James B. Carroll, while John J. Sheehan, a prominent labor leader, presided at Holyoke and Alderman Daniel J. Buckley at Chicopee.

John J. Sheehan, an officer of the Molders' Union of Holyoke, and prominent in the State Branch, American Federation of Labor, declared the highest wages paid to men of his calling in America, with the one exception of those at the Watertown Arsenal, were paid by Governor Foss in his Hyde Park factory.

Has No Ax to Grind.

Governor Foss said, in part:

"My position on the tariff is simply that of the average Massachusetts business man who hasn't any ax to grind.

"I favor the immediate performance of President Taft's promises on the tariff. I believe that it was his duty to co-operate with the Congress he called in special session. He should have become the leader in the work of removing at once at least a part of the superfluous protection from 'indefensible' schedules.

"I favor revision based on knowledge; the President and the standpatters have always boasted of profound knowledge about the tariff. The general public knows enough about it to be sure that some reduction should have been made.

"I believe in investigation into the facts concerning trade and industry, but everybody knows that the findings of investigators will not bind Congress.

"The findings of the Tariff Commission of 1882 were not followed and President Taft himself disregarded the report of his own Tariff Board on wood pulp and paper for the reciprocity debate, and this report was extensive and thorough.

"Both President Taft and Chairman Emery, of the Tariff Board, have declared that to ascertain the cost of production is, for practical purposes, impossible.

"No Tariff Board can commit Congress to a principle nor can findings of fact change or control the principle to be applied to them. The Republican party has not departed a single bit from the principle of superfluous protection and tariff for privilege. The result of the President's stand on reciprocity was not downward revision but tariff privilege.

"Mr. Taft deliberately killed the Root amendment and assured free wood pulp and paper to the 'Newspaper Trust' whether reciprocity should succeed or not.

Should Act at Once.

"This was not a stand for scientific tariff making but for immediate free trade. The news and book paper industry was sacrificed in order to grant a privilege to the 'Newspaper Trust.'

"I do not believe in sudden pronounced reductions of the tariff, but I believe that the way to revise is to revise.

"The best evidence of intention to get somewhere is to start. Distinct progress in gradual reduction was due long ago and should be begun at once. The President should not have the power to play favorites with tariff rates.

"The Farmers' Free List bill was at least fair in intention, in that it proposed to compensate farmers for supposed loss of protection through reciprocity. When the President vetoed this bill he had in mind and anticipated the defeat of reciprocity.

"I believe that when the Republicans reduced the duty on boots and shoes in the Payne-Aldrich tariff they should have placed all shoe findings on the free list.

"I believe that any man who says that I do not stand for adequate real protection must be a standpatter. That my opponent has grossly misrepresented my position on the tariff must be obvious to every man. Such misrepresentation can only be deliberate and wilful.

"My opponent is the loyal advocate of standpatters and standpatism. No one should be misled by the standpatter's pose as the friend of labor. The assertion that English textile workers get less wages than American is unqualifiedly false, and such misrepresentation is inexcusable. The highest Republican authorities all agree that the English textile laborer's nominal wages are about the same as those in this country, and that the English workmen's real wages are much higher.

"The standpatter's greatest mistake is his notion that he is a friend of American manufacturers. Not every high rate is protective. The Payne-Aldrich tariff actually restrains American trade and industry. The Republican attitude toward restraint by the trusts and restraint by the tariff is actually tender. They insist that each evil shall be corrected only 'by its friends.'

Reduction a Necessity.

"The head of the Farr Alpaca Company is afraid that if I am elected his mills will close. The mill is closed now, but I guess it will open again in the morning. Any plant that makes from 24 per cent. to 576 per cent. is pretty sure to keep running.

"I suppose that a mill enjoying the special advantages of the Farr Alpaca Company can keep running under any conditions, but I agree with Walter H. Langshaw, president of the Dartmouth Mills of New Bedford, one of the largest and most profitable in the world, that, unless superfluous protection is cut out of the tariff, the market will be glutted, part time employment will be the rule, and the laborers that have been crossing to the United States to enjoy American institutions will be competing with one another and depressing wages down to the starvation point.

"Though narrow politicians don't see it, the reduction of the tariff in order to sell our products in foreign markets is no longer a matter of choice but an absolute necessity. This necessity bears not only on manufacturers alone but upon the American industrial and financial system as a unit.

"The United States will soon be forced by circumstances to make economic alliances. If the understanding between standpatters in the United States and in Canada continues, and Canada adheres to, or England gravitates toward protection, the United States will be obliged more quickly to enlarge its foreign trade. Exports of food and raw materials are dwindling rapidly and are already less even than present exports of manufactures.

"There is a market at home for nearly all the food produced, to meet our foreign obligation, to pay for foodstuffs and raw materials imported, and to avoid actual national bankruptcy, an expansion of our manufactures at home and a larger market for them abroad are absolutely and imperatively necessary.

SWEARS HE WAS FORCED TO WED

Frank R. Brine of Brookline is expected to resume his testimony in the Suffolk Divorce Court to-day on his petition to have his marriage annulled. He claims his father-in-law, Thomas F. Dolan of Jamaica Plain, threatened to shoot him before the wedding.

The husband testified that he saw Miss Nellie Dolan but a few times before their marriage. He then testified that he and the girl made a visit to the parent's camp at Hudson. It was claimed that the girl told him after this visit that if her father knew the two were at the camp unchaperoned he would make Brine marry her.

A few days later Brine is supposed to have received a message from his own father telling him to come up to Trinity place, as it was a matter of "life and death."

"I went to the house and near the bridge I met my father, who said that Tom Dolan was down near the station," Brine swore. "I started to go away. My father grabbed me by the coat collar. I got away and ran down Columbus avenue. My father followed with his head stuck out of a cab window, yelling 'Stop thief!' He finally caught me and we had a tussle on the sidewalk. I came back with him to Trinity place and saw Dolan. He said to me, 'You will have to marry my daughter. If you do not or try to get away I will riddle you with bullets.'"

MRS. STANLEY McCORMICK

VOTES PLEA BY BOSTON WOMEN

By GERTRUDE L. MARVIN.

AMERICAN Staff Correspondent with Suffrage Delegates.

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 26.—Even Copley square will realize that there has been a Woman Suffrage convention when the first returning delegates report at their headquarters on Boylston street. When Mrs. FitzGerald, Mrs. McCormick and Mrs. Agnes A. Jenks of New Hampshire reached New York, they took the next train home. New York had no attractions in comparison with getting back to the Real City.

The party left Louisville on a train which, in harmony with those usual western schedules, was an hour and a half late. The women reached Cincinnati shortly after noon where automobiles were waiting to whisk them off to Fountain square for an outdoor rally. These Boston delegates introduced street meetings in Cincinnati during an enforced wait on their way down to Louisville a week ago, and so this was a sort of a final curtain call.

The crowd gathered quickly, for the come Suffragists had advertised the meeting, and by the time Mrs. FitzGerald rose about 600 people had crowded around her automobile.

Mrs. FitzGerald, looking very dignified and gracious, urged the men of Ohio to put a paragraph for Woman Suffrage in their constitution. "Because you'll all be healthy if you have a good constitution."

Mrs. Jenks of New Hampshire followed, telling the Ohioians that the Democrats of her State had spontaneously offered to put a suffrage plank in their platform.

Mrs. Stanley McCormick urged the men to realize that "the home and the interest of the home are politics and until we get away from studying Browning and get down to the conditions of real life in our homes and in our cities, we can make no great progress."

Mrs. McCormick looked very charming in her black satin suit with touches of purple. Indeed, she made such a winsome figure as she stood high in the touring car, looking down over the crowd and pleading with them earnestly, that the Westerners were quite captivated. They applauded when she told them that "if you think the street meetings a novelty and such a very strange thing for women to do, I shall have to tell you that you are a bit behind the times, for we have been having them in the East, these several years." Then, with a fine air of assurance, she told the men to "get wise to the suffrage movement." They laughed with delight at the bit of slang.

The audience were about half men and half women, business people and laborers all mixed in together as they had stopped on their way across the busiest square in the city. They all cheered together as the automobiles drove away, the yellow penants worded: "Votes for Women", fluttering.

A larger white flag bearing six blue stars for the six suffragist States, had been hastily fastened to an umbrella and made an effective guerdon.

HOW TO PREPARE A REAL FRENCH MEAL.

M. Escoffier, the famous French chef, gives some of his most choice recipes in

SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

BROOKLINE GIRL AND DETROIT MAN WED

The marriage of Miss Clarissa M. Kittredge of Brookline and Lot Morrill Hamlin of Detroit, Mich., took place to-day in the Arlington Street Church. The groom is a graduate of Princeton 1908, and is a grandson of the late United States Senator Lot Morrill of Maine. Miss Kittredge is a daughter of Mrs. Jeremiah Kittredge of No. 97 Gardner road and a member of the exclusive Sewing Circle League. The bride was in Messina at the time of the earthquake, where, at the Taormina, the headquarters of Miss Kittredge, she could not be located for ten days. The Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham performed the ceremony.

BOSTON MAN KILLS HIS NINTH MOOSE

SALISBURY, N. B., Oct. 26.—Captain R. S. Harrison, formerly of the Boston Lancers, the Fusiliers and the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston, came out from Ernest Eagle's camp at Mt. Eagle, Canaan woods, accompanied by Dr. John Dunphy of Court street, Boston, with his ninth moose. The two men have been in the woods ten days. Dr. Dunphy got his first moose, an 800-pounder, on his first day out. He next got two deer, and the next day Captain Harrison shot his ninth moose, weighing about 1,000 pounds. Captain Harrison also got two deer and a black bear.

SHANE LESLIE, IRISH LECTURER, ARRIVES

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Shane Leslie, lecturer in the United States for the Gaelic League, and propagandist for the Young Ireland movement, arrived here on board the steamship Majestic from Ireland. He will lecture throughout the country during the Winter. He was met at the pier by a number of prominent Irish-Americans and driven to the residence of ex-Congressman Bourke Cochran, whose guest he is.

Two Time-Saving Advantages of Buying Your Smallwares Here

In Our Conveniently Located Smallwares Section, Near the Washington Street Entrance

Advantage No. 1—We carry two complete stocks in our great Smallwares Store—the assortment and variety of one section being duplicated in another section immediately adjoining, thus accommodating twice as many patrons at one time.

Advantage No. 2—The countless articles in our Smallwares and Notions Store are so arranged here that a patron can buy everything needed in such goods of one salesmoman—thus doing away with the annoyance so common elsewhere of going from one clerk to another, and from one part of the counter to another before completing her purchases.

Both These Advantages Make for Quick and Comfortable Shopping —and Are Appreciated by Thousands of New England Women

Friday Three-Hour Sales

LOOK OUT FOR THE PENNIES. Here is an old adage with some modifications: "Take care of the pennies and the dollars will care for themselves." It is the small savings (stopping the leaks) that count in household economy. The housewife who makes her weekly or monthly purchase money go farthest is the one who wins out in the long run. In what way can the thrifty shopper make the odd pennies count for more than by attending regularly (as thousands do) these lessons in economy—our Three-Hour Sales?

TAFT CONDEMNS COLLEGE YELLS

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 26.—Addressing the students at the University of Minnesota, President Taft made a plea for fairness in sport, whether it be upon the college gridiron on on the professional baseball field. He deplored in particular the action of baseball crowds in attempting to put the visiting team at a disadvantage by insulting remarks and cat-calls from the grandstand and the bleachers.

"I love baseball," said the President, "but I also love a fair deal. I suppose it is necessary to keep up their barbaric yells they are supposed to be an impression of university life. I suppose it is necessary that the leaders go through the contortions that we saw here in order to invoke the real college spirit.

"But it was not necessary thirty or forty years ago. They got along with a less sharp yell and a somewhat more graceful hurrah.

"I wish our university games could be atended with a little less partisanship and better treatment of the other side in our applause and in our appreciation of good plays.

"When I see players on the other side beset with insults, by all sorts of cat-calls and cries to put them at a disadvantage, I feel as if there might be an improvement and that we might depart from showing our deep interest in our side by that method, and that we might show appreciation and applause after the game and after the decision is reached."

SELL LETTERS OF LONGFELLOW

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Letters from Henry W. Longfellow to Ferdinand Freiligrath, the German lyric poet, and presentation copies of Longfellow's books, were sold by the Anderson Auction Company. The letters date from 1842, when Longfellow became acquainted in Germany with Freiligarth.

The highest price was $185, paid by Dr. Rosenbach of Philadelphia for a first edition of "Hyperion," with autograph inscription, "Ferdinand Freiligrath, with the regards of the Author, June 12, 1842."

A presentation copy of the second edition of "Poems on Slavery," accompanied by a four-page letter giving his impressions of Dickens, Tennyson, Thomas Campbell and others, brought $175.

NEW VENIREMEN FOR M'NAMARA

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26.—New veniremen for the McNamara trial were secured to-day. The last of the original 125 having been examined.

Counsel for the defense announced that it would have an investigation made of the explosion during blasting operations at the new Los Angeles Times building which blew rocks across the street and slightly injured N. J. Weller of Corona, Cal., rancher. Windows in a piano store were broken and a boulder smashed an upright piano.

The last eight of the original veniremen were excused. They were: F. J. Mullen, real estate dealer, excused because the court doubted whether he would b able to give a fair trial; A. C. Winter, builder and contractor, challenged after he said he had a fixed opinion as to guilt or innocence; A. L. Dunlap, farmer, believed defendant guilty; A. J. Foley, real estate dealer, excused because of ill health; W. L. Coward, truck farmer, previously accepted as to cause by defence, challenged by the State after he said he had a fixed opinion that McNamara was not guilty.

W. L. Williamson, rancher, excused because of difficulty in hearing; John D. Caldwell, car shop assistant foreman, excused for non-belief in capital punishment.

FROTHINGHAM HITS AT FOSS

Lieutenant - Governor Frothingham, Lodge Machine Candidate for Governor, at his rally in Wellesley, championed the Governor's Council against Governor Foss. He described the Council meteing earlier in the day and charged Governor Foss with action more arbitrary than that of any Governor of the Commonwealth since King George III. ruled over the Colonies.

The Governor, he said, had declined to put a motion made by a member of the Council. What, he asked, would have been said had he as Speaker of the House acted in like manner? When another motion was made, he declared, the Governor had peremptorily ordered the councilor to sit down.

"If hearings on appointments are asked for," he said, "and the Governor refuses to grant them we will see that they are granted.

"During the week we have received protests against the confirmation of four men, the protests coming from all parts of the Commonwealth and with requests for hearings. Citizens of the Commonwealth have a right to be heard. Even the Governor would admit that.

"It is being made to appear that the Council is taking its position as to these appointments because of opposition to the removal of the present officials. It is quite within the rights of the Council to consider whether the public service is being injured by the removal of the incumbent of an office and the substituting of another.

BELIEVE FRIEND KILLED WOMAN

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 26.—Captain William Holtz, chief of the detective department, to-day declared that if Dr. Helene Knabe, former State bacteriologist, whose throat was cut while she lay on her bed Monday night, was murdered, he is satisfied she was slain by a person with whom she was acquainted, and that she voluntarily let this person into her apartment.

"I cannot see anything but murder in this case," said Dr. C. O. Durham, coroner of the county. "The instrument of death was not found and circumstances indicating suicide appear to me negligible."

Captain Holtz said he did not intend to reflect upon the character of Dr. Knabe in saying he believed she knew her slayer, if she was murdered.

"Dr. Knabe's reputation was unblemished," said he, "but there are a number of possible motives for her murder."

The Biggest Clothing Victory of the Season

We Place on Sale Friday and Saturday the Entire Surplus Stock of the Well-Known

L. & M. SYSTEM CLOTHES FOR MEN, 718 and 720 Broadway, New York

HERE is an opportunity for MEN AND YOUNG MEN who are particular about the clothes they wear, and yet are inclined to make a GOOD TRADE for a thoroughly well made

New Fall Suit or Overcoat

This Sale is a triumph in value-giving, that is more surprising when you take into consideration the fact that most men have not as yet bought their Fall or Winter Suit or Overcoat, and that other stores are asking regular prices for these same garments.

We feel fortunate in securing the surplus stock of the L. and M. System Clothes, and justly proud to know that WE can offer them SO MUCH LESS than they are NOW being sold by their regular representatives throughout the United States. Their products are recognized throughout the country, from the chosen materials to the last finishing touches of the perfect garment, and the high-class craftsmen whom they employ.

These Suits and Overcoats Are Sold Today Throughout the United States at 15.00 and 16.50. Our Price Friday and Saturday . .

Men's Suits Beautifully hand tailored suits, for business or dress wear; cut in conservative or extreme styles, in plain and fancy mixtures, worsteds, cheviots, unfinished worsteds; sizes for long, short, stout or regular built men.

Men's Overcoats In the most popular and correct models, fancy cheviots, all wool kerseys and oxford grays, box and semi-box styles, also the distinctive high turn-down collar, suitable for dress or storm wear.

We Have Sold Thousands of Razors

During the past few months and none were returned—isn't this a good sign of satisfaction? We offer for Friday and Saturday another lot of the same celebrated razors, consisting of the following celebrated brands — The Boss, Pathfinder, Imperial and Wade & Butcher English Steel, in a limited quantity, at.............................. 35c

NEW PLANET IS NEAR NEIGHBOR

By HAROLD JACOBY,
Rutherford Professor of Astronomy in Columbia University.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—We must go back a long way in the history of astronomy to match a piece of astronomical news that has just been made public in the daily press.

It is reported that a small new planet was recently discovered in Europe, but that astronomers have failed to keep track of it and are no longer able to find it with their telescopes.

It was on the very first day of the nineteenth century, January 1, 1801, that Piazzi discovered the first of the minor planets from the observatory at Palermo in Sicily, and named it Ceres. Up to that time astronomers had no knowledge of any minor planets belonging to our solar system. They knew only the five great ones that have come down to us from the time of the ancients—Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn—and the modern Uranus, discovered by Herschel in the eighteenth century.

Hard to Locate Planet.

Illness prevented Piazzi from observing Ceres more than a few weeks, and as news travelled slowly in those days, several months elapsed before astronomers in Northern Europe heard of the new discovery.

Ordinarily, a discovery of this kind is at once cabled to the Harvard College observatory in Cambridge, Mass., which is the American station from which new discoveries made in Europe are announced throughout the country by telegraph.

But, according to news received in New York from Harvard, this particular discovery seems not to have been cabled and so we have only meagre information received by mail from Europe, with observations not later than October 4. This is the reason American astronomers have not been able to locate the new planet; but a cable message has been sent to Europe, and astronomers here believe they will see this interesting body on the first clear night after a reply is received. In all probability more recent observations exist in European observatory records.

The new planet gives promise of being an especially interesting one, if we may depend on the reliability of the very few observations so far received. These indicate that it probably has an oval orbit deferring quite considerably from a circle, whereas most of the known planetary orbits are very nearly circular. Those of the "major" planets are all quite round.

Earth's Near Neighbor.

On account of the circular form of its orbit, our earth maintains practically a uniform distance from the sun, whereas the planet, whose orbit is quite oval, may at times be much farther from the sun than it is at other times.

Just at present earth and planet are about as near each other as they can ever be. It is not altogether unlikely that this "closest approach" to the earth may have brought this new planet nearer to us than can occur in the case of any of the others. If this turns out to be the case, the new planet would actually be our nearest neighbor in space with the exception, of course, of our own moon.

STATE AND NATION TO HONOR IDA LEWIS

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 26.—Across the waters where she had performed so many notable acts of bravery, from Lime Rock lighthouse to the mainland, the body of Ida Lewis, the "Grace Darling of America," will be conveyed in a launch tomorrow for simple services in the Thames Street Methodist Episcopal Church. Only brief services for the relatives will be held at the lighthouse. In the Methodist church, where Miss Lewis was an attendant, the services will be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. F. Giesler. Mayor Boyle and members of the city government, as well as State and Federal officers and the army and navy, will be represented.

EMILIE GRIGSBY TO LIVE ACROSS SEA

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Emelie Grigsby, who used to be Emily Grigsby to her old friends in Kentucky before her mother put her under the charge of the late Charles T. Yerkes as his ward, is soon to leave her native land to make her permanent home abroad, where, she declares, she has been received cordially by members of the English royal family after being completely ignored in her own land. With Miss Grigsby is to go her famous collection of jewels, valued at $800,000.

Catch As Catch Can

For woman and man is the way of the modern P. O., with his innocent smile, which the dollars beguile from those who as yet do not know that parlor opticians usually charge $2 or $3 more for glasses than Wilson Bros., the Scollay Sq. jewelers, and may do you more harm than good. Be very careful where you take your children when their eyes require attention. Wilson Bros. employ 5 skilled opticians, 10 high-class watchmakers; glasses rep'd while you wait; prescriptions not necessary, bring in your broken lens, open evenings.

WAR MINISTER OF CHINA SLAIN

SHANGHAI, Oct. 26.—General Ying Tchang, Minister of War, who is in the south at the head of an imperial army, is reported to have been assassinated by a revolutionary spy at Kwang-Shua. General Ying Tchang delayed his active operations against the rebels because of his lack of artillery and because of the numerous desertions of unpaid troops. His death, if true, is a serious blow to the government.

It is reported that Canton has been seized by the rebels. Great bloodshed is reported.

The victorious rush of the Chinese rebels toward Pekin is unbroken. Tsi-Nan-Fu, capital of the province of Shan-Tung, and only 200 miles distant from Pekin, has fallen into the hands of the revolutionists.

Tsi-Nan-Fu is an important manufacturing city of 300,000 souls, located on the left bank of the Ta-Tsin River. It is noted for the Roman Catholic cathedral.

A correspondent reports the revolutionists have outflanked the Imperials 180 miles north of Hankow, and have secured the government's war chest, containing $1,125,000.

Further troops have been ordered to the front from Manchuria. Hundreds of Chinese are fleeing from Pekin, all the trains being crowded.

It is reported that the Imperial family is ready for flight. The road to Jehol, 115 miles from Pekin, is studded with troops. Other rumors designate the foreign settlements in Tien-Tsin as the possible refuge.

FIFTY CARS LOST IN PITTSBURG FIRE

PITTSBURG, Oct. 26.—The West Park carbarn of the Pittsburg Railway Company was burned, with fifty cars, early to-day. The loss was $200,000.

GERMAN GIFT FOR HARVARD

Harvard's Germanic Museum is to be enriched soon by the gift of a fine collection of sixty casts representing the most notable works of the sculpture of the Rhine section of Germany. Professor Kuno Francke, curator of the Harvard museum has been officially notified that the government of Rhenish Prussia has decided to give to the museum a collection of casts of the most representative works of Rhenish sculpture from the Romanesque, Gothic and Renaissance periods. The gift is made at the suggestion of Professor Clemen of the University of Bonn, who recently was exchange professor at Harvard.

The collection will include a richly ornamented portal of the Treves Cathedral, the Romanesque portal of the Church of Our Lady at Andernach, choir screens from the Church of St. Maria in the capitol at Cologne, and finely carved choir stalls from Xanten and Oberwesel. The whole Rhineland from the Moselle to the Dutch frontier will be represented by typical works of art. The Society of Arts and Crafts of Rhineland and Westphalia will make similar gifts covering the industrial arts of those provinces.

The gifts will include twenty large pieces and will be qual in value to the donation by the German Emperor, which gave the museum its start.

MYSTERY IN TORSO FOUND AT SCITUATE

The police of Scituate and adjoining South Shore towns are trying to identify a torso, badly decomposed, that was washed ashore in the surf at Second Cliff, Scituate. Medical Examiner Peterson of Hingham viewed the torso, but found no marks that would furnish a clew that might lead to identification. It is possible the body may be that of a sailor, washed in from the sea, but the police believe they have come across a death mystery.

CASCARETS SURELY STRAIGHTEN YOU OUT

No Headache, Biliousness, Upset Stomach, Lazy Liver or Constipated Bowels by Morning.

Are you keeping your bowels, liver and stomach clean, pure and fresh with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway through these alimentary or drainage organs every few days with Salts, Cathartic pills, Castor Oil or Purgative Waters.

Stop having a bowel wash-day. Let Cascarets thoroughly cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the undigested, sour and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poisons in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken or cause any inconvenience, and cost only 10 cents a box from your druggist. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never have Headache, Biliousness, Coated Tongue, Indigestion, Sour Stomach or Constipated Bowels. Cascarets belong in every household. Children just love to take them.

A SMALL AD IN THE AMERICA

REBEL ADVANCE ALARMS MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 26.—Astounded by the realization that the forces of Zapata entered the Federal district, sacked a town and then stood off a detachment of the Federal army, the Chamber of Deputies demanded that the acting minister of war and the minister of the interior appear before that body and make full reports regarding the insurrection and measures taken for its suppression. The President called a special session of the cabinet.

SAW FISHING VESSELS SINK

GLOUCESTER, Oct. 26.—While people here are rejoicing that the report that the fishing schooner Tattler of this port had been lost in the gale of last week, is unfounded, they heard from Captain Alden Geel of the Tattler a tale of the loss of two other vessels and the loss of forty men.

The tattler is at St. John's, N. F., leaking. She will be obliged to stay in port for several days while her rudder is being repaired and minor injuries looked after.

Captain Geel reported that his schooner ran into a gale near the fishing grounds about five days ago, and during one of the most terrific storms he ever witnessed he saw two schooners, owned by Portuguese fishermen, go down, one with 40 men on board, while the second crew was saved by another schooner.

R. R. TAFT HELD FOR AUTO DEATH

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 26.—Dispatches from Hartford to-day tell of the arrest there of Robert R. Taft of this city, in connection with the killing of a sixteen-year-old boy named Richard Clark, said to be of Springfield, in an auto accident last month. The dispatches say Taft confessed that he, in company with Clark and a third companion, stole in Hartford on the night of September 20 an automobile owned by George L. Bidwell. They drove the car down to Virginia. While going down the mountains near Buchanan the machine ran into a tree and was overturned, inflicting injuries on Clark which caused his death.

Young Taft is the son of E. R. Taft, a Springfield photographer, and a grandson of P W. Taft, an official of the Steel Trust and for many years a resident of Boston, but now of New Haven.

GREAT REVIVAL BEGINS MONDAY

A great religous campaign, to be known as the Men and Religion Forward Movement, will be launched Monday under the auspices of the continuation committee of the World in Boston and the Laymen's Missionary Movement of the United States and Canada.

The campaign will include all denominations and will be one of the biggest evangelistic revivals ever in Boston.

The work is under the personal supervision of J. Campbell White, general secretary of the laymen's missionary movement; the Rev. W. T. Stackhouse, general secretary of the Baptist laymen's movement; Colonel E. W. Halford, W. E. Doughty and Mornay Williams of New York, and Dr. Capen of Boston.

REPORT READY IN NICKERSON CASE

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 26.—Coroner Eugene H. Lincoln's report upon the cause of the mysterious death of Mrs. Lillie C. Nickerson of Jamaica Plain, who disappeared from the Joy line steamer Georgia and whose body was found washed ashore at Little Compton, was sent to-day to Coroner Gifford of Little Compton.

Mr. Gifford will file the report with the clerk of the Superior Court at Newport within a few days.

Mr. Lincoln prepared the report, but Coroner Gifford will file it because Little Compton, where the body was found, is in his jurisdiction.

A WARNING TO MANY

Some Interesting Facts Regarding Health Statistics

Few people realize to what extent their health depends upon the condition of the kidneys.

The physician in nearly all cases of serious illness, makes a chemical analysis of the patient's urine. He knows that unless the kidneys are doing their work properly, the other organs cannot be brought back to health and strength.

When the kidneys are neglected or abused in any way, serious results are sure to follow. According to health statistics, Bright's disease, which is really an advanced form of kidney trouble, caused nearly ten thousand deaths in 1910 in the State of New York alone. Therefore, it behooves us to pay more attention to the health of these most important organs.

An ideal herbal compound that has had remarkable success as a kidney remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy.

The mild and healing influence of this preparation is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of cures.

If you feel that your kidneys require attention, and wish a sample bottle, write to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Mention this paper and they will gladly forward it to you absolutely free, by mail.

Swamp-Root is sold by every druggist in bottles of two sizes—50c and $1.00.

WIFE SUICIDE, SAYS M'FARLAND

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 26.—When Allison McFarland was informed of his indictment by the Essex County Grand Jury on a charge of murdering his wife by the use of cyanide of potassium, he gave out this statement:

"I had plenty of motives for divorce, but none for murder. 'The harmless bromide' referred to was a solution of bromide which I have always understood to be a dangerous drug and not a thing to take in the dark. That was the only bromide in the house.

"So far as I know, it is a liquid almost black in color and having a very penetrating odor and a characteristic disagreeable taste. I gave some to my wife on three, or possibly four, occasions, to find if she liked it, but she complained it was 'dope' and objected to the taste, and it had no apparent effect on her.

"The published stuff about my changing labels is the rankest nonsense. A microscopic examination of the label should refute the idea. I do not think, however, that any one in authority made any such charge.

"The cyanide solution is a clear, colorless liquid like water and has no marked odor. It has a very nasty taste and is totally different from the bromide. A blind man would not mistake one for the other.

"I would rather let it go as a mistake, and did so, hoping the common sense of the authorities would show them the absurdity.

"It seems, however, that I am compelled to defend the charge, and can do so if necessary. I ask my friends to suspend judgment until they hear it all.

"The affair is one for extreme sorrow and regret on my part, but a murder charge is absurd. I had all to lose and nothing to gain by my wife's death under such circumstances."

SANDFORD PLEA IS 'NOT GUILTY'

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 26.—Rev. Frank W. Sandford, leader of the Holy Ghost and U's Society, passed the night in a cell, having been unable to furnish $5,000 bail after his arrest by the Federal authorities, following an investigation of conditions on board the yacht Coronet, which arrived Saturday from a year's cruise in Southern waters.

He was charged with causing the death by scurvy of Charles Hughey, one of his missionaries, by neglecting to furnish sufficient provisions and failing to take him into port; also with withholding sufficient provisions from the crew of the Coronet.

He pleaded not guilty and his case was continued until next Wednesday morning. When the charge was read and Sandford was asked whether he was guilty or not guilty he replied: "I have not wilfully caused the death of Charles Hughey." His reply was unsatisfactory to Commissioner Bradley, who requested him to reply either guilty or not guilty. His plea of not guilty was then made.

The officials found that three or four men had died of scurvy, three within three or four days of reaching this port, and were buried at sea, but specific action was taken only on the Hughey death.

The penalties provided for the alleged crime are a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment of not more than ten years, or both, in one case, and a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment not more than five years, or both, in the other.

Although Sandford has been brought before the Maine courts on various charges, one of which was on the charge of manslaughter in causing the death of a child by neglect, this was the first action ever taken against him by the Federal authorities.

Deputy Stevens was sent to serve the warrant. He first passed the night at South Freeport, where the "fleet" of the Kingdom Corporation was at anchor, and made a thorough search of the Coronet. The Rev. Charles F. Holland, known as the Moses of the society, was the only person who knew where the leader was to be found. From him it was learned Sandford was in seclusion and resting in one of the society's farm houses at Shiloh, occupied by Elder George F. Jewell.

Deputy Stevens went there and placed Mr. Sandford under arrest. The latter said nothing, except to ask what the charge was, and readily accompanied the officer.

Charles Hughey, who, it is alleged, died at sea because Sandford knowingly and wilfully caused and allowed neglect, misconduct and violation of the law by going to sea without sufficient food and not entering port when he had opportunity to do so, was a graduate of the Friends' School at Providence, and was engaged in evangelistic work when Sandford became acquainted with him and engaged him for service in the society.

BUILDERS' TRUST TO FILL IN FLATS

The State Harbor and Land Commission gave permission today to the American Builders' Trust to fill in the South Boston flats as far as the present line of the reserved channel. The company petitioned some time ago for a better harbor line so that its property in South Boston might be developed.

VANIMAN TO MAKE TEST TRIP SATURDAY

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 26.—Melvin Vaniman expects to make his first trial flight in the dirigible balloon Akron Saturday. He plans to fly above the city first and then go out over the ocean for a short spin. If all is well, the start for the trip across the Atlantic ocean will be made a few days later.

BUSY GUESSING FOLEY QUESTION

Woman slavery in Massachusetts foundries is, according to hundreds of correspondents who are sending letters to the AMERICAN office, the subject of the question Miss Margaret L. Foley, the Suffragist leader, is going to ask Lieutenant Governor Frothingham, a few days before the election, November 7. These letters show the indignation that exists throughout New England following the Sunday AMERICAN'S expose of conditions in various foundries.

The question is asked in many different forms and no one but Miss Foley knows which one will win the prize money the AMERICAN offers for the correct answer.

The question is not "Do you believe in votes for women?"

WHAT IS THE QUESTION?

The AMERICAN will pay $5 to the person sending the nearest to Miss Foley's secret question. Five others who are next nearest will receive $1 each. Both men and women may reply. There is but a short time in which to win these cash prizes.

SEND YOUR ANSWER AT ONCE TO "SUFFRAGIST EDITOR," BOSTON AMERICAN, BOSTON, MASS.

Here are a few of the thousands of interesting answers that have been received:

"Mr. Frothingham, if elected governor, will you try to make a stop to women's slavery in Massachusetts?" Mrs. Jennie Tolansky, No. 58 Quincy street, Roxbury.

"Women are to-day paying taxes on property without being granted representation at the ballot—is that fair law?" Mrs. Kvikegaard, Bedford.

"Will women work in Massachusetts foundries?" Homer Wilson, No. 34 Ellsworth avenue, Brockton.

W. Bush Saxton of No. 539 Western avenue, Lynn, sends his reply in poetry. He writes:

MARGARET TO LOUIE.

"Are you inclined, my dear Louie,
To grant us our franchise
That we may vote?" Then Margaret wrote:
"Please no 'election lies.'

"Your most illustrious career
Being sadly on the wane,
Pledge us your vote or," Margaret wrote:
"You'll hear from me again."

"Be sensible my dear Louie"—
Then Margaret spoke out plain—
"Pledge us your vote or kindly note
With you we'll raise old Cain."

"I represent the Suffragists
The fact, do not forget,
Give us our vote" and then she wrote
"Yours truly, Mar-ga-ret."

NOTHING-TO-DO JOB HUNTS MAN

NETCONG, N. J., Oct. 26.—Alvin Smith is no longer the really, truly "Yep! Nothing to do till to-morrow" kid of this town. Alvin has "blown the works" and the job is seeking another incumbent.

At that Alvin admits to his intimate friends that he had it pretty soft in some ways. All the offices he had to fill were those of chief of police, street commissioner, overseer of the poor, janitor of the borough hall, superintendent of the water department and collector of water rents. In addition to being chief of police he also was the police force. Some nights he had as many as two hours to do his sleeping.

Got Good Money, Too.

Alvin got some salary too. Every month he went to the borough treasurer, one of the few offices he didn't fill himself, and drew down forty-five nice, hard, round iron men.

Mr. Smith says while the joy was soft in some ways and that he didn't stagger so much under the weight of all his borough offices he couldn't stand the "kicking" of fussy tax payers.

While Smith might be out arresting a fellow citizen for calling his neighbor names there would come in a telephone call informing the street commissioner that there was a bad hole in the street, and while Smith was out dumping a barrel load into the hole in the street somebody wanted him to be on hand to remove some unfortunate to the poorhouse.

Office Seeks the Man.

But when the Mayor berated him for not sweeping out the back entry of the City Hall when Smith was really in the water office, opening the safe to receive $1.65 water rent, he could stand it no longer, and so he just up and quit.

Smith says he's through trying to serve the people. Hereafter the people will have to serve him or leave him strictly alone.

Meantime the borough council is wrestling with the problem of locating some other lightning-change artist who may want a good $45-a-month job, with nothing to do from some time after midnight before daylight, except in emergencies.

WORST COLD BROKEN AND GRIPPE MISERY RELIEVED IN FEW HOURS

Pape's Cold Compound is the result of three years' research at a cost of more than fifty thousand dollars and contains no quinine, which we have conclusively demonstrated is not effective in the treatment of colds or grippe.

It is a positive fact that a dose of Pape's Cold Compound, taken every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken, will end the Grippe and break up the most severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, stomach, limbs or any part of the body.

It promptly relieves the most miserable headache, dullness, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, running of the nose, mucous catarrhal discharges, soreness, stiffness and rheumatic twinges.

Take this harmless Compound as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine made anywhere else in the world which will cure your cold or end Grippe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad after-effects as a 25-cent package of Pape's Cold Compound, which any druggist in the world can supply.

BRANDEIS FLAYS TOBACCO SCHEME

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Louis D. Brandeis, the "People's Attorney," of Boston, shot a damaging bolt into the army of Tobacco Trust counsel when at the hearing before the United States Circuit Court here, he briefly but clearly pointed out that the proposed plan of "re-organization," framed up by the Trust and its lawyers to comply with the Supreme Court mandate, was to all intents and purposes a subterfuge. Mr. Brandeis is counsel for independent tobacco men, who are fighting the big trust.

Mr. Brandeis apparently has the first right to the ear of the Court. He filed his objections to the plan first. He pointed out that the proposed dissolution plan does not, in reality, dissolve the trust to such an extent as to make competition among its segments possible, suggests each segment be entrusted to entirely distinct and different groups of stockholders from those in each other segment.

The interests in each segment being the same as the interests in every other segment, the petition points out, would result in non-competition because stockholders would be competing with themselves were the reverse true. He further pointed out that the plan contemplates leaving intact the United Cigar Stores Company.

A lawyer for a committee of the preferred stockholders of the trust petitioned the court that he be heard in support of the plan.

The attorney said he represented owners of 458,000 shares of the trust's preferred stock. The plan he said, would not only fairly and honestly dissolve the corporations, but safeguard the interests of the stockholders. Should the court grant his petition, he will submit his contentions at the day set for public hearing, October 30, or as soon thereafter as practical.

COOK GUMDROPS FOR ESQUIMOS

HAMBURG, Germany, Oct. 26.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the alleged discoverer of the alleged North Pole, is on his way here to lecture. He was permitted to leave Copenhagen quietly. He told the Danes that the receipts of his lectures there would be given to the Eskimos at Cape York and the price of gumdrops at once took a big jump. The King of Denmark sighed wearily when told of Dr. Cook's disposition of the lecture money.

ARE WOMEN GROWING BALD?

"The rapidly growing demand for hair goods indicates decidedly that full heads of natural hair are becoming scarcer every day," says Mae Martyn, noted beauty specialist.

"Only about one woman in a hundred seems to understand that alkali, as found in soaps and most shampoos is the deadliest enemy to the hair. It practically eats the life out of the hair, causing it to become brittle, split at the ends and fall out.

"To keep the scalp clean, healthy and free of dandruff and the hair soft, bright and growing, shampoo once in two weeks with a teaspoonful of canthrox dissolved in a cup of hot water. The hair will dry quickly without streaking, and there is no shampoo like this one for promoting hair-health and preventing baldness."—Los Angeles Press.

EX-LIBRARIAN TRIES SUICIDE

Arthur J. Knowles, fifty years old, formerly assistant librarian at the Social Law Library, attempted suicide by gas at his boarding place, No. 129 Austin street, Cambridge, to-day. He was taken to the Cambridge Relief Hospital, where his condition is serious.

A. F. Bowker, with whom he boards, smelled gas and, gaining entrance to Mr. Knowles's room, found the man unconscious in bed, with a gas tube running from a jet to the bed. Dr. Gilman was called.

The attempt at suicide is believed to be due to despondency. Knowles had been out of employment two years.

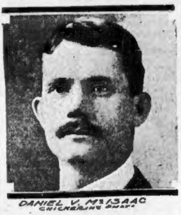
DANIEL V. M'ISAAC, GIVEN A PLACE ON PELLETIER'S STAFF



DANIEL V. M'ISAAC

CHICKERING [illegible]

M'ISAAC GETS DWYER'S PLACE

District Attorney Pelletier to-day formally announced that Assistant District Attorney Michael J. Dwyer had resigned from office. The resignation will take effect November 1.

Both Mr. Pelletier and Mr. Dwyer denied there had been any friction.

Mr. Dwyer said that he had accepted a position as trial lawyer in civil cases for the law firm of Tyler & Young. He said he received the offer several months ago and that he accepted it last month.

Mr. Dwyer said he informed Mr. Pelletier of his decision, and that the District Attorney requested him to remain in office until the end of this month in order to assist him in preparation of several cases. He strongly denied that there had been any friction over the Linnell case, and, when he concluded his statement to the newspapermen, he went into the Grand Jury chamber to assist Mr. Pelletier in the presentation of the evidence in the Linnell case.

Mr. Pelletier formally announced that Mr. Dwyer's successor will be Daniel V. McIsaac of South Boston.

Mr. McIsaac has been active in Democratic politics for several years. He served Ward 15, South Boston, in the Common Council in 1897 and 1898 and in the House of Representatives in 1899 and 1900. In 1900 he was elected in the State Senate. For many years he was chairman of the ward committee and for two years president of the Democratic City Committee. He was born in Pembroke, Me., November 6, 1871, and came to Boston at the age of thirteen. He was graduated from Boston University with honor in 1898.

TOO EARLY TEACHING COSTS YOUR CHILD 1-3 ITS LIFE.

So says Dr. Guy Potter Benton, the new president of the University of Vermont, thereby upsetting the new system of creating infant prodigies. See SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

APPEAL MADE BY BEATTIE'S FATHER

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 26.—Henry C. Beattie, Sr., father of the condemned wife murderer, was at the Governor's executive offices in private conference with the Governor's secretary, Ben P. Owen, uncle of Mrs. Louise Owen Beattie, the murdered woman. His call was the first step of a personal appeal to Governor Mann in the interests of his son, the exact nature of which is not disclosed.

RUSSIANS WIN BOSTON'S FAVOR

An evening with Russian court musicians, singers and dancers is certainly a rare treat. This was the unanimous opinion of the large audience that filled the Boston Opera House last night at the opening performance of the Balalaika Orchestra, the Russian operatic quartette and the Russian dancers. Everything was Russian, and it was a decided and pleasing novelty. The performance is repeated to-night and there is a double bill to-morrow night.

You don't have to be versed in the Russian language or cultivated in Russian music to enjoy this novel performance. The Balalaika is a wonderful instrument that is likened to the guitar and mandolin, and as played by the Andreeff players the harmony is exquisite.

Audience is Appreciative.

The first half of the bill is devoted almost entirely to the orchestra, and repeated encores had to be responded to. The solo by Ivan Pogoreloff was magnificently done. The operatic quartette from the Imperial Opera House of St. Petersburg and Moscow gave but two selections, but they were delightful. Their singing of that magnificent selection "Beyond the River Grows Intoxicating Hop; There Lives My Darling," to the accompaniment of the orchestra, was a rare treat.

The second half of the program is devoted to the Russian dancers. The most effective dances were the waltz Czibulka, by Mlle. Lydia Lopoukowa and Alexander Volinine; the nocturne, by Mlles. Helena Schmolz, Stanislawa Kuhn, Stephania Plaskowietzkaia and Wanda Meczkowskaia and the Hungarian rhapsody by the entire troup of Russian dancers.

Picturesque Dance.

The latter was the most picturesque and novel dance of the evening.

Mlle. Julia Sedowa gave two solo dances that were purely Russian and excellent interpretations. The orchestral work was excellent as a large Russian orchestra played the accompaniments for dancing entirely independent of the Balalaika orchestra. While Russian dancing is probably not destined for any widespread popularity it is a decided novelty and well worth seeing.

CARUSO TO SING AT NEW YORK OPENING

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The first week's repertoire at the Metropolitan Opera House, beginning November 13, with a partial list of the principals to appear, was officially announced by Giulio Gatti-Casazza. Caruso is announced to sing in the opening performance, which Toscanini will conduct. His colleagues will be Emmy Destinn and probably Pasquale Amato and the new contralto, Margarete Matzenaver. The Wednesday night opera will be "Koenigskinder," with Geraldine Farrar and Hermann Jadlowker.

IVERNIA WINS FAST RACE ACROSS ATLANTIC OCEAN

Ivernia wins!

The grand transatlantic race of about 2,600 miles between the Cunard liner Ivernia and the White Star liner Cymric for fun, money and marbles ended with the Ivernia a winner by one hour and thirty-three minutes in a total of seven days, ten hours and ten minutes elapsed time. Both vessels docked to-day, after resting at quarantine over night.

It was a great race and many bets were lost and won by passengers and crews.

The summary:

TRANSATLANTIC TRACK.
Grand Oceanic Race—Ivernia vs. Cymric.

Won by Cunard Line's Ivernia by 1h. 33m. White Star Line's Cymric second. Time (elapsed) 7d. 10h. 10m. Distance, 2,610 miles. Track fast; weather fair. Attendance—All on board.

That's about the way they would summarize the race on the sporting page. It was a great beat. All the more credit is due the winner because this was the Ivernia's first trip since she sank in Queenstown harbor last May, after running on Daunt's Rock. Captain W. R. D. Irvine, the new skipper of the Ivernia, bears his honors modestly. In fact, the skippers of the rival vessels will not admit there was a race. That would not be officially proper. But it was a race all the same, and a dandy, too.

The Cymric and Ivernia left Queenstown harbor on the same afternoon. The official course was from Daunt's Rock to Boston lightship. The Cymric passed Daunt's Rock one hour and twenty-two minutes ahead of the Ivernia.

The vessels were in sight of each other practically all the way. Each made all speed possible. The official logs show that Captain F. B. Howarth of the Cymric laid a course of 2,607 miles, while Captain Irvine of the Ivernia went over a course three miles longer. But the Ivernia made a trifle the better speed, for the time for each vessel making Boston lightship yesterday afternoon was:

Cymric, 5:10.
Ivernia, 4:59.

So the Ivernia was at the lightship eleven minutes ahead of the Cymric. Figuring the Cymric's start of 1h. 22m., this gives the Ivernia a victory of 1h. 33m. The elapsed time for the two was:

Cymric—7d. 11h. 43m.
Ivernia—7d. 10h. 10m.

The Ivernia brought 991 passengers; the Cymric 790.

Kidney Trouble Is Very Deceptive

Few Realize They're Affected Till Danger Point is Reached—Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills Work Wonders—Sample Free!

Kidney disease is much more common than most people imagine. Many sufferers do not know what's ailing them—until the trouble becomes serious. Some trifling affection may run into the dread diabetes, dropsy or Bright's disease before one realizes there's anything wrong with his kidneys.

Usually the most noticeable symptoms which first appear are far from the seat of the trouble, and the sufferer mistakes the nature of his ailment. Dull headaches or nervousness, for instance, he never thinks of as signs of diseased kidneys.

Even the aching back and sides, rheumatism, pains or twitching in groins or limbs, sore, inflamed muscles, he may consider indications of some other trouble. Unnaturally colored or cloudy urine, too frequent or too scanty urination, burning sensation, are of course readily recognized as symptoms of such disorders.

Because of the deceptive and dangerous character of these ailments, if you suspect your kidneys are diseased, lose no time in beginning treatment. The best possible remedy for you is Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills. They are quite different from anything else in the market. They act in two ways—cleanse the clogged kidneys of their poisonous impurities, strengthen them so they perform their duties normally, naturally. There's no other way to really cure kidney derangements, resultant bladder troubles and rheumatism—and permanently banish those frightful aches and pains

Get a package of these marvelous Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills at once. 25c and 50c packages. If you want to try them first ask your druggist for a free sample package, or same will be sent direct by Derby Medicine Co., Eaton Rapids, Mich.

VERMONT MIDGET DIES OF INDIGESTION

BARRE, Vt., Oct. 26.—Walter Freeman, thirty-six years of age, who was only three and one-half feet tall, died of acute indigestion. Freeman weighed fifty-nine pounds and is said to have been the smallest man in the State. He had received many offers to appear upon the stage as a Lilliputian, but preferred to remain on the home farm. He had three sisters and two brothers, all of whom, as well as his parents, are of normal stature.

COULD NOT TELL BROTHERS APART

BROCKTON, Oct 26.—Clarence E. Bolinder of East Bridgewater was charged in court with violating motorcycle regulations, Oct. 12 but he satisfied the judge that he was not the guilty party. As a result his brother, who looks so much like him that Constable Belmore always thought there was only one Blinder in town, will be summoned into court.

Righteous Judgment

A Plea for Sanity in the Richeson Case by The Watchman; Speaking for the Leaders in the Baptist Church.

From The Watchman.

This editorial was written by the Rev. George Edwin Horr, D. D., president of Newton Theological Seminary, from which Richeson was graduated and who presided and was sponsor for the accused pastor at the recognition service at which Richeson was installed over the Immanuel Baptist Church, Cambridge, on October 20, 1910. Dr. Horr was to have officiated at the wedding of Richeson and Miss Violet Edmands on October 31, which has been indefinitely postponed.

During the past week New England, and for that matter, the entire country, has been struck with horror at the murder of Miss Avis Linnell, which was charged upon Rev. C. V. T. Richeson, upon the eve of his marriage to the daughter of one of our best known laymen. Mr. Richeson, the minister, is entitled to all the presumption afforded by his respectable career as a student and pastor. He is also entitled to all the safeguards afforded by our laws. His guilt or innocence will not be determined by sensational newspapers or public clamor, but by the courts. In every community there are many persons to whom the fall of a minister of religion is an occasion for croaking and delight, but fair-minded men will reflect that, even should this frightful charge be substantiated, there are tens of thousands of Christian ministers whose lives are wholly above reproach. A man or public journal that countenances the use of a charge like this to cast reflections upon the ministry or the churches betrays a bias against the best things in human life that discredits his own perceptions and standards. We have no doubt that pending the trial of this case the Cambridge church will act with the self-restraint which appears to have characterized its course thus far

Public feeling is so aroused in this case that we may expect that our Baptist polity will be severely criticized for its slowness in registering opinion. Many persons have expressed their regret that when a minister has pursued a course of conduct that has led to public scandal he cannot be deposed at once by some bishop or other high official. The procedure under our Baptist polity is as follows. In a clear case of gross misconduct the church of which he is pastor and member may exclude him from their membership, which deposes him as their minister.

In complex cases, and usually, it is wise to call a council, a mutual one, if possible, to which the church and the accused minister are parties. This council would pass on the facts of the case and report its decision, either exonerating or inculpating the minister. The church would then act in view of this report. The final action is taken by the church.

In grave cases, pending the action of a civil tribunal, the church may postpone all action until the civil verdict is rendered, in the meantime relieving the minister of his duties, or it may take final action without waiting for the civil verdict, but this course should be allowed only where the grounds upon which the church makes its decision, whether of condemnation or acquittal, are demonstrably clear.

Action by the church in advance of the civil verdict does not necessarily prejudge the civil case, since the grounds on which ecclesiastical and civil decisions are reached are not necessarily identical. A minister, for example, might be acquitted of a crime, but his indiscretion might forfeit confidence in his ministerial character. The apparent slowness with which our polity operates is in accord with the action of the civil courts, and is demanded by judicial fairness.

SHEPARD NORWELL EMPLOYES TO DANCE

Plans for the second annual ball of the Shepard Norwell Company Mutual Aid Association in Howe Hall to-night are completed and the arrangements committee predicts the affair will be a success in every particular. The association, which is beginning its second year, performed excellent work last year and its monthly store magazine is a most interesting part of its activity. The officers of the association are Bruce Norwell, president; N. J. Wallis, vice president; Herbert F. Price, recording secretary; William M. Lichtenstein, financial secretary; George Tupper, treasurer.

TURKISH GIRLS LEARN TO FLIRT

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26.—"The maidens of Turkey have learned to make American goo-goo eyes—they have learned to flirt like an American belle or a Paris girl."

So said Sidkey Bey, discussing the new regime in Turkey. He was formerly second secretary to the Turkish Embassy at Washington, afterward Acting Consul-General in New York. Sidkey Bey is here with his wife, handsome and talented, who had the distinction of being the only woman dwelling in the Turkish Embassy. He went on:

"In the old days a woman in Turkey couldn't flirt, because her glances were wasted on the wrong side of her veil. Now she can use her eyes to advantage, and she knows it. The Turk knows it, too, and is glad she does not wear the veil.

"Under the old regime a lover never saw his bride until after the ceremony was over and the wedding feast done. Then he lifted her veil with some misgivings in his heart, for he had married the woman of his mother's judgment.

"In these days the American courtship is carried on in Turkey. The young man calls at the girl's house, and even goes so far as to take her out for a walk just like the American or Englishman. Then he pops the question, and if she accepts they are eventually married, if some other fellow does not come along whom the girl might like better."

Priests' Advice Led to Their Recovery

Thin, weak or frail people—those who "take cold easily" and sufferers of Bronchitis and Asthma, should be prepared with Eckman's Alterative in the house.

Remarkable cures of even Tuberculosis (Consumptive) persons are often accomplished. Here are two cases:

Gentlemen: On June 3, 1907, I was operated upon for Tubercular Peritonitis at St. Mary's Hospital, Rochester, N. Y. After the operation my physicians gave me up. I was then urged by a priest to take Eckman's Alterative, which I did. My weight at the time was 72 lbs. I began to improve and steadily gained in health and strength. I now weigh 125 lbs., and am absolutely cured."

(Signed Affidavit) EDNA FINZER,
90 Savannah St., Rochester, N. Y.

"Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma and Bronchitis for seventeen years. After trying many remedies Eckman's Alterative was recommended to me by our parish priest. I am now feeling fine. I cannot praise it enough."

(Signed Affidavit) ANNA MAE McENTEE,
Lacon, Ill.

Eckman's Alterative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Riker-Jaynes Stores, Houghton & Dutton Drug Dept. and other leading druggists. Ask for booklet of cured cases and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for additional evidence.

WEDDING ENDS MAIL ROMANCE

A romance by mail culminated in the wedding to-day of J. E. Lynch of the Henry Siegel Company, and Miss Delia A. Mahoney, a Chicago society girl.

The couple first met in New York, where Miss Mahoney was staying at the home of her sister. When Miss Mahoney went back to Chicago and Mr. Lynch came to Boston they kept up their correspondence. Mr. Lynch at frequent intervals made flying trips to Chicago to see her.

J. E. Pridday, manager of the Boston Siegel store, was best man and Miss Mary Mahoney of New York, sister of the bride, maid of honor. The ceremony was performed at St. Cecilia's Church, Back Bay, by the Rev. James A. Supple.

Painless Method For Removing Hairs

(Beauty Advice)

In response to many inquiries for a harmless remover of hair or fuzz from the skin's surface, there is herewith published a simple formula now frequently used with great success in many of the leading beauty shops: To a little powdered delatone add enough water to make a thick paste, then spread on hairy surface; after two or three minutes rub off and wash the skin and the hairs will have vanished.

Delatone can be supplied by any druggist, and while an original ounce package costs a dollar, the price is trifling because delatone does its work quickly and well and leaves the skin firm, soft and white. Usually only one application is necessary, excepting where the growth is thick or stubborn.

A New Habitat—

To our patrons, friends and the public we announce our removal to more spacious quarters in the new Lawrence Building, 149 Tremont Street, at West.

In the old offices with which Bostonians are familiar we have rounded out a generation of business in your midst, and it is a matter of personal pride with us that the name of the John W. Sanborn Company is everywhere associated with business probity and progress.

We leave with our memories the sentiments and regrets occasioned by this exodus and turn our eyes forward to our new task in the broader sphere of greater opportunity.

With a view to Service in all that it implies we have selected the location most convenient for our patrons and have thoroughly equipped our new offices with every desideratum for comfort and their aid. There will be no difference in the conduct of our business—no change in our prices—though the personnel of our force will be increased.

We are not forgetful that just one thing has made possible the remarkable growth of our business, and that is the enthusiasm of our patrons. Persons whose eyes we have examined have urged their friends to consult us. These in turn have advised others, until to-day it is almost necessary to make an appointment for an examination a day or two in advance, and we look forward to still greater development from the consciousness of merited approval.

Therefore, we formally announce our removal from 3 Winter Street and the opening on Thursday, the twenty-sixth day of October, of the new home of Zoroid Lenses, and, in anticipation of your call, remain,

Respectfully yours,
BRIGGS S. PALMER, Pres't.

RICHESON'S LAWYERS OUTLINE PLAN OF DEFENCE OF MINISTER

A DOG KILLED BY CYANIDE, THEY SAY, WILL BE PRODUCED AT TRIAL.

autopsy on the body of the girl, Miss Jula [illegible] superintendent of the Boston Young Women's Christian Association, where Miss Linnell died; Dr. Mary Hobart, the [illegible] when the girl was found [illegible] and Miss Inez [illegible] to the Rev. Mr. Richeson [illegible] hours after Miss Linnell died.

It was expected that the examination of the [illegible] would take up most of the day. It was the aim of the district attorney [illegible] any more witnesses than [illegible] and that the whole of [illegible] not be disclosed to the defence [illegible] expected [illegible] to [illegible] of the [illegible] grand jury.

Irrespective of what claims the State may advance, it was asserted, the defence will rise at what it considers to be the proper time and challenge the prosecution to in any way connect the accused minister with the slaying of Avis Linnell.

This declaration is borne out by the attitude of the Richeson family. Colonel Thomas Varland Richeson, father of the prisoner, is to return to his Virginian home [illegible] within a few days.

It is possible that the middle of next week will see none of the Richesons remaining in Boston. The family is positive in its declaration that the pastor is innocent.

Miss Lilly Richeson has called on her brother in his cell and come away convinced of his innocence. She told him she believed in him absolutely and would return to Boston at any time that her presence would be of use to him. A few hours later she left the Parker House and took a train for [illegible].

Colonel Richeson is the happiest man in Boston to-day. His talk with his boy in jail has made him [illegible] [illegible] ing of that meeting to-day he [illegible]

"I never saw Clarence looking better in my life than when I called at the Charles street jail. I was surprised to see him looking so well after being locked up so many days.

"I am the most pleased man in Boston to-day. I don't mind saying that when I arrived in Boston I was a little bit disturbed. Before I had seen my boy, things certainly looked black with such a charge hanging over him, even though I was sure he was not guilty.

"To-day it is [illegible] I have no reference to [illegible] meeting with Mr. Edmands or [illegible] who represents him. Nor do I [illegible] my happiness upon the assurance of my attorney from Virginia, who came here with me. All I know is that my son Clarence is not guilty. I know it from the expression on his face during all of our long talk with him. There [illegible] a convincing [illegible] as he [illegible] were talking.

"I am as happy as a boy. I would like to stay in Boston forever, for I like the city. But I must be getting back to Amherst Courthouse in a few days. Now that I have talked with my boy, I am satisfied.

Will Return for Trial.

"I shall return to Boston for the trial, but that will last only a few days, I am convinced. There is nothing about the case to make it a lengthy one. It will be a short trial, I know, and I am confident of the result."

Colonel Richeson repeated many times how pleased he was at the appearance of his son. Their meeting in the jail was unusual. They conversed freely, and made little attempt to guard their words from the jail officials. In fact, it was a meeting such as might have taken place anywhere between father and son.

Many of the things they talked over did not bear on the arrest, and but for the time spent in discussing this it was much like an ordinary reunion.

On leaving the jail, Colonel Richeson sent a number of telegrams expressing his confidence in the outcome of the case to friends in Virginia.

In the evening Colonel Richeson, his son, Douglas, and his attorney, had dinner, strolled out Commonwealth avenue, and then went to the South Station to say farewell to Miss Lilly Richeson.

To-day, so far as the Richeson family is concerned, there is nothing but confidence.

Because of the fact that neither Philip R. Dunbar, who has been retained as counsel for the defense or his father, Former Judge Dunbar, who is associated with him in an advisory capacity, are more generally known as civil than as criminal attorneys, it has been reported that a noted criminal lawyer would be called in as associate counsel for Richeson.

Among lawyers to-day the name of Melvin M. Johnson, who planned and conducted the defence of Hattie Le Blanc in the Glover case, was mentioned as one of the attorneys most likely to be retained for the Richeson defence and it was even reported that overtures had been made to him. Mr. Johnson however said that he had not been asked to become associated with the case in any capacity.

Former District Attorney Michael J. Shugrue, General Charles W. Bartlett, who was associated with the defence in the Eastman and Jordan murder case; Harvey H. Pratt, who was in the Jordan case, and Daniel J. Coakley also were mentioned to-day by attorneys as likely to be connected with the Richeson case. But none of them have been yet invited to become associated with the case.

Strange stories of the conduct of the Rev. Mr. Richeson when he was pastor of the Baptist church at Hyannis have been cropping up during the past few days. A girl named Holt of Athol visited at Hyannis two years ago. It was said at Hyannis to-day and [illegible] Mr. Richeson paid her some attention.

According to the story the clergyman took her out sailing. She was dressed in white. The sea was rather rough and the clergyman rocked the boat until the girl was soaked. She cried out in terror, pleading with him to take her ashore. It is said that instead of that he took her further out and when she finally [illegible] ashore she was not only drenched [illegible] skin but almost frightened to death.

FRIEND TELLS HOW RICHESON 'CUT OUT' NASON AS SUITOR

HYANNIS, Oct 26.—Ernest Norris, a chum of Byron S. Nason and an acquaintance of Avis Linnell when they all attended the Normal School in Hyannis, told an AMERICAN reporter to-day how Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson "cut out" Nason in the courtship of the dead girl.

"Avis was the prettiest girl in the Normal School and Nason seemed to be very fond of her," said Norris. "He walked about with her a good deal and they seemed to be very good friends. Finally he began to call Sundays. Now, when a fellow calls on a girl on Sundays down here it means he is serious.

"He called about three Sundays and on the fourth Sunday, who was there but Richeson. Nason saw that it was all over with him, for Richeson was [illegible] the girl's attention with [illegible] conversation and it was evident that [illegible] impressed with him. Nason [illegible] ing on Avis [illegible] saw he had no show. Then [illegible] ends.

"The very day Avis died in Boston Nason came back to Hyannis. He called upon Emerson Savery at the Normal School and I went up there, too. As we were old cronies we talked until quite late and then stayed all night in Savery's room.

"I went out in the morning and got some papers and the first thing we saw was [illegible] of Avis [illegible]. It was a shock to us all, especially Nason, who takes such things hard. We all thought at once, that it was on account of the minister that Avis had died. Next day we read that it was [illegible]. Nason said [illegible] much excited [illegible] killed her must be punished and [illegible] to help all I can to do it.

"[illegible] the affair [illegible] up to the [illegible]

"I don't care [illegible] to try to bring the murderer to [illegible]."

Amateur Detective Busy

Myron Bradford, the [illegible] on his way to the [illegible] was [illegible] by an [illegible]

"[illegible] Myron [illegible] wasn't the body of Avis Linnell at all that you brought back on the train from Boston. What would be the sense of [illegible] that body up and putting [illegible] again? It's my idea that the police [illegible] back an empty casket and are keeping the body there to confront the minister with it. Yes, sir, that would [illegible] gum, if they brought the body [illegible] to the court room."

[illegible] drawled Myron [illegible] a gray moustache. "They don't [illegible] ing over on me. Before [illegible] the casket back into the grave [illegible] it and it was Avis's body right [illegible]"

Myron pushed his way through [illegible] miring circle and returned to [illegible] is the brother of Ernest Bradford [illegible] State detective. Both are descendants of old Plymouth stock.

Another prominent figure in town now is Dr. Charles H. Harwood, who [illegible] the Sherlock Holmes of Hyannis. Dr. Harwood is highly respected as a physician and well-thought of as a detective. Dr. Harwood has theories on this Linnell case and they are mostly good ones. The doctor has fraternized with the newspaper men and swapped [illegible] with them.

It was on [illegible] the [illegible] reporters spent a night in the [illegible] where Avis is [illegible]. It was rainy [illegible] headstones were damp and [illegible] walking at all [illegible] only [illegible] might have been [illegible] fever of sickness, and in that case the reporter would have had an exclusive story. Instead he caught a bad cold and Dr. Harwood treated him free of charge.

"The Sky Pilot" Film.

The doctor was present at the exhumation of the body and asked Mr. Bradford, the undertaker, to open the casket so that the bathrobe might be examined then and there, but Captain Armstrong from the [illegible] police, would not allow it.

There was a change of [illegible] Hall Moving Picture Theatre [illegible] and the management [illegible] entitled "The Sky Pilot."

This sky pilot was originally [illegible] character who beat up his best friend [illegible] the girl liked his friend best. After he got out of jail he entered the ministry. The scene changed to Alaska, and [illegible] elapsed in about fifteen minutes. The sky pilot saved the life of his [illegible] in the course [illegible] and later when the [illegible] married the widow.

ANOTHER WOMAN TELLS OF PASTOR'S PROPOSAL TO HER

BROCKTON, Oct 26.—Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson proposed to Miss Inez R[illegible] now Mrs. W. Everett [illegible] three years ago at Hyannis [illegible] young woman turned him down.

Mrs. Shaw was visiting her [illegible] Mr. [illegible] Hallett at Hyannis three years [illegible] when she met the prisoner. He was [illegible] at the [illegible] and the young woman [illegible] in each other's [illegible]

"Finally," said Mrs. [illegible] to-day, "he proposed to me. I was [illegible] he would do such a thing [illegible] known to each other [illegible] was very entertaining, but I [illegible] care for him."

Motor Cars Motor Trucks Taxicabs

An Alco Branch for Boston

It is just as true of automobiles as anything else—he who builds a better automobile soon finds a beaten path to his door.

One hundred per cent. greater than a year ago marks the demand for the Alco Motor Car.

Five hundred per cent. greater than a year ago marks the demand for the Alco Motor Truck.

Motoring Boston and Business Boston are writing their appreciation of the Alco in terms of orders.

Therefore an Alco Branch House has been established.

Up to this time the Alco has been distributed here by the Park Square Auto Station.

From now on purchasers of the Alco product—whether a motor car, a motor truck, or a taxicab—will deal directly with the manufacturer—the American Locomotive Company.

There are two distinct advantages which the purchaser gains through this arrangement.

He buys from the manufacturer, who naturally is more responsible than the middleman.

He receives personal service.

There is nothing safer in the world to buy than responsibility or reputation. It is a business axiom.

The responsibility of the American Locomotive Company requires no analysis. Capital $50,000,000, and dating back to 1835 as movers of the world's goods. Builders of over 50,000 locomotives. A reputation indelible.

Business men will doubtless find it a business pleasure to deal with business men in the automobile business. They can find this opportunity at the Alco Branch.

The new Alco Salesrooms are at 567 Boylston Street. The Alco Service Building is the former Shoe and Leather Exhibition Building, Charles River Basin, Cambridge. And the Alco Factory—only an hour's journey away—is at Providence.

The equipment for Alco Service is complete. A full supply of spare parts, shops for repairs and painting and a sincere desire to take care of Alco patrons go to make up this equipment.

The man in charge is Mr. George H. Hudson, formerly President of the Hudson Colby Company. He is a Boston man, and well known in the automobile trade.

You are invited to come in and look over the Alco line—the Motor Car, which twice won the race for the Vanderbilt cup; the Motor Truck, which holds the world's non-stop record of 168 hours; the Taxicab around which has been built the greatest number of successes in the taxicab business.

If you will write or phone a car will call for you.

Stand By New England!

¶Do you realize that two-thirds of all the woolen fabrics made in America are made in the New England States?

¶There are no better mills than these New England mills in all the world. They have expert managers, the latest machinery, the most advanced methods, and, above all—remember this—the most skilful and best paid labor.

¶Read what the largest importer of English fabrics in the United States has said of American mills and their production:

> "There are no more expert manufacturers anywhere than the best of those in this country. They are wonderfully quick to catch ideas, to modify, alter, improve, and to meet quickly the ever changing demands of fashion and fancy. They produce as great a variety of woolen cloth as can be found in the whole of Europe together.
>
> "The fine and medium grades of the woolen cloths made here are generally better than those of equal quality to be obtained in any other country. American colors are, as a rule, better, clearer and more lasting than those of similar foreign made fabrics. The designing talent in America is quite equal to any in Europe."

¶Abraham Lincoln once said, in substance: "I don't know all about the tariff, but I do know that when we buy a ton of English iron, England has the money and we have the iron; but when we buy American iron, America has the iron and the money, too."

¶And the same great principle is as true of cloth as it is of iron.

¶American cloths "made in New England" are shown at the New England Fair. Go and see them for yourselves. Study the handiwork of New England operatives.

¶Then decide for yourselves whether that great importer who knows both American and foreign cloths is not right when he tells you that American woolen fabrics, "fine and medium," have no superior in the world.

'Chief' Meyers Describes How Giants Won the Fifth Game

By CHIEF MEYERS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The Giants have started to [illegible] their stride at last and [illegible] pretty close on the Philadelphia Athletics who were already three games [illegible] the top.

They're still three-quarters [illegible] but we're half way. If we beat them on their home grounds to-day and I think we [illegible]—we'll be step and step with [illegible] may the best [illegible] win, and [illegible] if they win after that they [illegible] been to the races.

I think we [illegible] we've been looking for [illegible] since the series began [illegible] batting streak [illegible] we [illegible] hero of the day.

The boy is both a [illegible] and he [illegible] double [illegible] Then little Josh Devore's single [illegible] across [illegible]

BAKER, QUAKER HOME RUN MAKER

Frank Baker, the Athletics' crack third baseman, is a product of the eastern shore of Maryland, hailing from Trappe, Talbot County. He was born in 188[illegible] [illegible] six feet tall and weighs 175 pounds. He has batted like a [illegible] this season, having almost a dozen home runs to his credit, while [illegible] called nearly 200.

Like [illegible] players Connie Mack has developed into stars, Baker [illegible] terrific wallop with the wagon tongue to recommend him. [illegible] He was [illegible] by one of Manager Mack's scouts. While in the [illegible] Shore League Baker was a pitcher.

It [illegible] through the scarcity of utility men that Baker was called upon [illegible] third base. His performance [illegible] such a notable one that Baker never again entered the pitcher's box. He was gathered in by the Baltimore Orioles of the Eastern League, [illegible] owing to the [illegible] frequent [illegible] Frank returned to his home on the Chesapeake and, later, became a member of the Reading, Pa., team of the Tri-State League. It was while playing for Reading that he made his reputation of being the best [illegible] hitter in that league.

Manager Mack got on the job and the rest of the story is familiar to all followers of the national sport.

DOYLE AND CRANDALL ARE STARS OF FIFTH CONTEST, SAYS WARD

By JOHN MONTGOMERY WARD.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—There have been other world's series but none that has even equalled in interest the one now in progress. And [illegible] games that have thus far been [illegible] between the contending teams [illegible] for years to [illegible] In [illegible] was the issue been decided [illegible] in Philadelphia [illegible] Tuesday [illegible] has turned upon some [illegible] or play so unusual and startling as to almost a stroke of fortune.

If ever man lifted himself by [illegible] Larry Doyle performed that feat [illegible] yesterday's game. When [illegible] he dropped Herzog's throw [illegible] Coombs' hit which would have forced out [illegible] at second, and Oldring followed [illegible] home run drive into the left field bleachers, Doyle was so far [illegible] that he was [illegible]

Instead of "quitting" [illegible] he proceeded from that time to show [illegible] what a [illegible] his next four times [illegible] singles and two doubles.

It was as fine an exhibition of [illegible] has [illegible] the direct inspiration for his fellow players [illegible] resulted in the winning of the game.

Hits Keep Crowd Alive.

While neither of his first three hits resulted in adding to the score they kept the team as well as the crowd alive, and showed that the Giants were still [illegible] for the game.

In the tenth inning, however, [illegible] left [illegible] opening [illegible] two-bagger [illegible] resulted in the winning run.

[illegible] missing a thrown ball while running [illegible] kind of [illegible] With [illegible] on the base [illegible] and both on the [illegible] it is a miss that frequently occurs.

But as there were two [illegible] out when Oldring made [illegible] hit, the entire three runs were [illegible] scored against Doyle [illegible]

But not all the credit of the game [illegible] is to be given to Doyle. With [illegible] in favor of [illegible] Athletics, Manager McGraw [illegible] Marquard [illegible]

Ames Is No Hitter

[illegible] Ames [illegible] was [illegible] series [illegible] were gone.

In the seventh inning [illegible] with Herzog on the base, McGraw [illegible] Ames [illegible] Crandall, who [illegible] as pitch.

But his next time [illegible] justified his manager's judgment and, furthermore, proved that he is [illegible] good pitchers of the [illegible]

It was his [illegible] ninth inning, after two [illegible] Fletcher and [illegible] second, whence he came home [illegible] the tieing run [illegible] to left centre.

Crandall in Good Form.

Crandall's hit [illegible] a home [illegible] centre [illegible] fielders. At pitching, too, Crandall [illegible] his form and made us [illegible] some of the [illegible] been given a chance [illegible] seemed [illegible] in actual [illegible]

Marquard [illegible] first three [illegible] McGraw put Becker to bat in [illegible] for the sole purpose of trying to strengthen the [illegible]

[illegible] himself [illegible] game [illegible] was his only reason for [illegible] Marquard [illegible] And Becker [illegible] made a [illegible] hit which [illegible] managed to reach.

For the first time in the series the Athletic batsmen [illegible] New York [illegible] Merkle and [illegible] are [illegible] suffering with stage fright, the Giants managed to hit him.

WALTHAM STRONG MAN ISSUES CHALLENGE

Norman Taylor, better known as the Waltham strong man, is out with a defi to meet John [illegible] the noted Boston strong man, in a match. Taylor says that [illegible] Taylor has the record of lifting [illegible] on his back [illegible] Taylor [illegible] in Waltham [illegible]

SHAKE-UP FOR BROWN ELEVEN

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 26.—Following a brief open practice that the large crowd of spectators might see something of the work of the squad, the Brown football men were pushed through a hard three-quarters of an hour of secret practice in preparation for the Harvard game at Andrews Field yesterday afternoon.

The first work consisted of [illegible] down under punts and falling on the ball with Sprackling and Crowther doing the [illegible] Sprackling [illegible] Crowther was [illegible] far [illegible] getting off [illegible] kicks.

In the secret practice there was a hard scrimmage between the varsity and [illegible] teams, mostly to test the varsity's defence [illegible] the past two weeks has [illegible] the varsity's goal [illegible] over [illegible]

From this it [illegible] Mitchell [illegible] while [illegible] right guard, who it was thought, would be dropped to make room for [illegible] retain his place. Robinson wants [illegible] weight in his line, and as [illegible] is the heaviest man in the squad, he wants to keep him if possible.

Just at present the only line positions that seem to be settled are the ends, Adams and Ashbaugh having them solid. The shift in the other positions has got certain of the [illegible] worried and it is sure that whoever [illegible] has got to show Robinson.

Right after [illegible] the coaches [illegible] Regnier and Torrey have [illegible] Regnier [illegible] his ankle [illegible] it has not yet got [illegible] Tenney was hurt before [illegible] was put in for a [illegible] Both men are expected, however, to be ready for work [illegible]

This afternoon will see the last hard practice before [illegible] test with the Crimson [illegible] and will be given [illegible] to-morrow [illegible] light signals, work [illegible] Saturday's contest.

JACK COOMBS IS SERIOUSLY INJURED

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.—Jack Coombs, the Athletics' [illegible] his home, No. 2246 [illegible] with serious internal injuries [illegible] yesterday's [illegible] New York [illegible] his condition is [illegible] The rain was intense [illegible] right side, but he kept on pitching.

In the [illegible] game of the [illegible] tourney at the [illegible] Bowdoin defeated Herbert, 150 to 110. To-night [illegible] plays Leroy.

Crimson Eleven Is Working Overtime Preparing for Brown

By TED PARKE.

To-day is the last chance for the coaches of the Harvard eleven to put on the finishing touches for the big battle with Brown in the Stadium on Saturday. This year of all years Brown comes to Cambridge as a very formidable opponent, one which Harvard will have to fight to the bitter end to come out with the long end of the score, and none realize this fact better than the members of the Harvard team.

That the men may [illegible] good fighting [illegible] on Saturday there will be a long [illegible] scrimmage behind closed doors in the Stadium this afternoon, during which the second team, using Brown formations, will [illegible] and banged until [illegible] for mercy.

There is no time to be lost in getting ready for the Brown game, and for that [illegible] there is hardly enough time to teach the team all the little things they ought to know, to be [illegible] to meet Brown [illegible] son is sending his [illegible] to Cambridge [illegible] year with the avowed intention of [illegible] the Crimson goal.

Coach Haughton will send his charges on the field on Saturday with the avowed intention of taking a certain [illegible] it is certainly a very even [illegible] as to which intention will find its consummation. A bet on either team would be a good risk.

There are lots of little rough spots on the Harvard team which need to be rubbed off this afternoon and every man on the team will be taken in hand by the coach [illegible] charge of his position and drilled thoroughly in everything pertaining to his position.

Light Work To-morrow.

To-morrow the work will be lighter, scrimmaging being out of the question for the day prior to a game is always given [illegible] semi-rest, signal formation [illegible] the only thing required of the men. To scrimmage a team on the day before a hard game like that with Brown would be [illegible] would go onto the field [illegible]

The work of the varsity in the Stadium yesterday was light and consisted only of a short seven-minute scrimmage with the second team, and after [illegible] half an hour was devoted to [illegible] signal drill.

It may have been that the extremely hard work passed out to the men on Tuesday may have taken it out of them too much, for yesterday the work of the varsity against the second eleven was far inferior to the exhibition given by the regulars on the day previous.

The varsity was given the ball at mid-field and started off with a rush. Potter [illegible] pretty forward pass to Smith at [illegible] which netted twenty yards, and repeated the trick at the other end of the line on the next play [illegible] making twenty yards more. With the ball in the varsity's possession on the fifteen-yard line the second team took a brace and held strongly, so that in two downs the varsity had gained only six yards.

Whether the remaining distance could have been gained in one try this [illegible] is a question, but [illegible] drop kick from the twenty-eight yard line. [illegible] "little slow in getting [illegible] off and several men [illegible] centre [illegible] ball. This ended the work for the varsity, the rest of time being devoted to a half hour's [illegible] between [illegible] and the second team.

Fisher Not in Scrimmage

Captain Fisher did not enter the scrimmage yesterday [illegible] the game with [illegible]

[illegible]

His punting [illegible] kicks was excellent [illegible]

Interference Has Improved.

One department in which there has [illegible] this week is that of interference. The early games [illegible] Harvard [illegible]

Kaufman May Soon Go to England to Fight Wells

By JACK CONWAY.

Al Kaufman, the one time mighty Californian white "hope," may soon pack his little grip and beat it over the seas in order to fight Bombardier Wells in London. The National Sporting Club is now making drastic efforts to get Kaufman to agree to engage in a game of fisticuffs with England's famous heavyweight mixer.

Kaufman has been in New York for the past few months attempting to get a match with "Pueblo" Jim Flynn or some other leading white heavyweight. Al, however, has refused to display his wares unless given $3,000 as his end of the purse. And no promoter in Gotham would part himself from such a bunch of the long green.

Kaufman was offered a chance to meet Sam Langford, but he turned the offer down flatly and declared that he would never enter a ring with a black man. There may be method in Al's system, for I have a hunch that either Langford, Johnson or Jeanette would experience little difficulty in putting him away inside of fifteen rounds.

Kaufman is a big, powerful fighter, but doesn't know a great deal about the art of self defence. He can hit with the force of a trip hammer and he can also assimilate an awful amount of punishment. But when it comes to protecting himself Kaufman is woefully lacking. A scientific man would experience little difficulty in riddling him to pieces.

If Kaufman takes the trip to the Old World he should clean up a big bunch of kale. The present crop of European boxers are a poor lot and Al should be able to send the majority of them reeling through the ropes with ease.

A Kaufman-Wells fight would give us a line on the English heavyweight. Wells was scheduled to meet Johnson the first of the month but the bout was prevented by the officials. Well's manager then offered Johnson an opportunity to fight in Paris but the Galveston black wouldn't give his consent to any such meeting.

Wells is one of the best developed men in the ring with the exception of his waist line. He has been fighting but a few years and has made a good record. But he wouldn't have much of a chance against the topnotchers on account of his inexperience.

Eddie Stanton, the fast traveling Marlboro featherweight, has just returned from Europe, where he made a great record. Stanton boxed in London, Paris and Ireland and did not lose a single bout. Eddie hurt one of his hands in a mill a few weeks ago and as a result came home. He says that the injured member is now almost well and that he will be ready to take on the best of them in a month. Stanton is anxious to get on at some New England club when he again starts working.

Digger Stanley is likely to sail for this country within a few weeks. The English bantamweight is desirous of annexing some of the easy money which they have been giving away over in Gotham since Senator Jim Fawley removed the lid. If Stanley comes to this country Al Delmont and Jimmy Walsh will both be camping on his trail. Both of these local favorites are classed among the leading little men in the world, and would give the Englishman a good argument.

Honey Mellody is traveling at a pretty fast clip these days. The old timer is winning from New England's crop of young welterweights with clock-like precision. I was speaking with Honey the other day and he says that he will soon be in good enough condition to go after the big fellows. Mellody has fought most of his bouts in the Pine Tree State and between escaping from the wrath of excited fight fans and mussing up promising young aspirants for ring honors, Honey has been one busy individual.

Mr. Michael Sullivan, a well known citizen of the fair city of Cambridge, is peeved. And it is all because none of the leading welterweights of the country will agree to meet Michael in a little game of fisticuffs. Mr. Sullivan has been claiming the welterweight championship for some time past, but says that unless he gets some big bouts mighty soon he is going to [illegible] the title or else pass it over to Joe Walcott. Michael also advances the information that he has got a big brother by the name of Jack who cherishes a setto with Mr. Bombardier Wells, the English white "hope."

"Buck" Crouse, the hard-hitting Pittsburg whirlwind, has joined the list of boxers who are claiming the middleweight title. Jimmy Mason's nineteen year old wonder has displayed his skill at the Armory twice this season and on both occasions he made good showings. "Buck" is a wonderful boxer; is fast on his feet, has a cool head and packs a murderous wallop, as "Young" Loughrey will testify. Crouse has a few faults to correct, but with another year's experience he should be able to give Frank Klaus, Bob Moha or any of the other leading middleweights a great argument.

SECOND ROUND PLAYED.

The second round in the club championship tournament at the Brae-Burn C. C. was played yesterday, the summary of the matches following: W. C. Chick beat R. D. Pierce, 5 and 4; A. L. Squier beat H. L. Dexter, Jr., 3 and 1; H. A. Roark beat W. F. Stiles, 2 and 1; H. W. Stucklen beat W. L. Crocker, 1 up.

For nearly a year I've been administering "606" for acute and chronic blood poisoning with most gratifying results. The marvelous effects of the drug in restoring health and strength in cases of certain forms of Paralysis, Locomotor Ataxia, Anaemia and Debility places "606" in as high a position in the Medical World as Antitoxin and the X-Ray. Notwithstanding the conservatism of many medical men, as well as those lacking practical experience in the scientific administration of "606" and the majority of medical men who frown upon the remedy and regret its discovery, the medical journals of the world teem with reports of cases that failed to respond to Mercury, Potash and Electro-therapeutics. My own experience with hundreds of cases justifies me in taking the stand that Prof. Paul Ehrlich has not exaggerated the properties and virtues of his discovery, which is now in use in all larger hospitals and army and navy departments of the civilized world.

There are no dangerous results following the administration of "606." It kills the spirokaeta, pronounced spi-ro-kee-ter (the germ of the disease) when given by competent physicians. IT DOES NOT INJURE THE SIGHT, but improves failing vision. The manufacturers of Mercury and Potash would have you believe that it injuries the eyes. I have improved and in some cases restored sight to many who were becoming blind. THE PREVENTION OF LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA AND CHECKING ITS ADVANCEMENT IS BEYOND DISPUTE. First consultation free.

CRACK BOWLERS IN BIG TOURNEY

By ED. COGSWELL.

It has been some years since tournaments were held in finding out the champion individual candlepin bowler of New England, the last of these being at Murray & Irwin's alleys, which, if my memory is correct, was won by Bill Beatty. Charley Symonds of Lynn now comes to the front with a proposition that will determine once more the much-mooted question of champion of to-day.

The scheme is to get the ten best bowlers in New England to make entry in the tournament, the same to be rolled at Symonds's Lynn alleys. Each man will meet the others twice, thus bowling twice around, the tourney taking place two nights each week, making the event last for eighteen weeks. Ten strings will be rolled in each match, the cost of entry being $1 for each bowler.

To the winner will be awarded $45, and a handsome gold medal, suitably inscribed with the victor's name as champion individual candlepin bowler of New England. To the one finishing second will be given $30, third $20, fourth $15, fifth $10, and $5 to sixth. Then to the bowler making the highest ten-string total goes $5, and to the one getting the highest individual string is another $5. It is up to the winner to defend the medal for one year when it becomes his property.

It is the hope of Symonds to receive entries from Poehler, Christopher, Wa[illegible]ton way, Jack Taylor, Martel, Warren Brown, Lucia, Cole and Burdette. Of course, Bill Beatty cannot be left out, being the champion of the old single man tournament, but he is doubtful through not wishing to leave his business.

TUFTS WORKING FOR 'AGGIE' GAME

Two defeats in succession is a little more than Coach Tobin of Tufts can stand, and he promises a big change in his team when it lines up against the Massachusetts Aggies on Tufts Oval, Saturday. The Medford team was defeated by Maine, 6 to 0, two weeks ago, and last Saturday Wesleyan won by a 10 to 0 score.

Tufts will be able to present its strongest eleven against the Aggies unless something unexpected happens in practice during the next two days. Several of the players who have been on the hospital list for the past few weeks have reported to Coach Tobin, and have been put to work. No time is lost on the Hillside, and just because it is one's first day out one does not get it any easier than the man who has been training all season and is already hardened up. Coach Tobin does not believe in loafing, and from the amount of work handed out he should have a great team before the season ends.

Mitchell, one of the first string quarterbacks on the squad, has returned for his old position, and has been put in to run the team. He has been troubled with a sore shoulder for the past few weeks and was unable to get into the games, but if the injured part proves to be strong he will play at quarter for the remainder of the season. Mitchell has had a lot of experience as a general, and has proved his worth, and with him at the helm the whole team looks much stronger.

Field Placed at End.

Field, who filled in at a backfield position, has been put at an end position, and Schlotterbeck, who was put out of the game two weeks ago with a pair of cracked ribs, has also reported to the coach, and will greatly strengthen the team. The latter player ran through signal practice with the second team yesterday, but it is expected that he will be shifted over to the line of the first team.

He played one of the forward positions on the first team in the last two games and proved worthy of a regular place. He is a good defensive and strong offensive player, and is always on the alert.

It is expected that the lineup for the Aggies' game will be about the same as that sent against Wesleyan, but changes may be made. In the practice this week Peabody replaced Richardson at centre. He showed good form and may get a chance to get into a real blood game. Schlotterbeck may be put in at one of the guard positions to start the game, but the other positions seem to be permanent.

Tufts played a hard game against Wesleyan, but nevertheless all hands were out for work Monday. Only light practice was gone through, however, but Tuesday scrimmage was handed out. Monday the two lower class men were absent from practice on account of their annual tug of war, but they made up for lost time on Tuesday.

Hard Practice To-day.

A hard scrimmage will be given the players to-day and to-morrow. Three defeats in a row would discourage the undergraduates, and as the coach wants to [illegible] up all the enthusiasm possible on the [illegible]side, he will put his team through the [illegible] kind of work in order to pull out a victor next Saturday.

[illegible] Tufts eleven will trot out on the [illegible] determined to win. The Aggies [illegible] played better teams than Tufts, but [illegible] not been successful. Dartmouth piled twenty two points and Brown piled up twenty six. Of course those two teams [illegible] considered much stronger and [illegible] victory by good scores. Brown has [illegible] up bigger scores on Bowdoin and [illegible] piled up a larger score on [illegible], and using these games as a [illegible] son, the Aggies rate stronger than [illegible] and Bowdoin and should put up [illegible] game against Tufts.

[illegible] Tufts team wants the game and will fight for it till the last minute. [illegible] This will practically be the first [illegible] in which Coach Tobin will have his strength on the gridiron and it remains to be seen what they will do. [illegible] entire undergraduate body will [illegible] cheer the team to victory and the [illegible] should be packed. To date the [illegible] shown by the students has been [illegible] average at the institution, but [illegible] defeats discouraged many, and the [illegible] ing to boom things on the Hill is [illegible].

BUSY TIMES AHEAD FOR ANDY MORRIS

[illegible] Morris clinched another match [illegible]. The East Boston heavyweight has [illegible] matches on his list now, all of [illegible] will be decided within a week. John Willie and Morris will meet at the New Bedford A. A. November 1. The [illegible] boxer is due in this city Friday [illegible] then go to New Bedford and [illegible] his training there. Morris will [illegible] Al Kubiak Saturday night at the [illegible] orium in Portland, Me. He will then go to New York and meet Jim Stewart at the [illegible] ning of Tom O'Rourke's new club next Tuesday night, and right after the [illegible] will start for New Bedford, where he will clash with Willie in a twelve round [illegible].

SPORT NEWS AND GOSSIP.

By FRANK DALLAM.

Joe McCarthy, manager of Irish Paddy Callahan, is on the war path. Joe is after the scalp of one, Young Dyson, who backed out of a match with Callahan at the last minute. Joe, in a long and lengthy letter to the AMERICAN, says, "Dyson agreed to meet Callahan at 122 pounds ringside. When he found that Callahan would do this he asked to make it 122 at 3 o'clock. This was also agreed to. Then he came across with the statement that he would box Callahan at 124 at 6 o'clock. This Callahan also agreed to. Dyson, when he found that his bluff was called, came out with the announcement that he would not box Callahan until Callahan got a reputation. Dyson is afraid of Callahan and fears that he will be put to sleep if he should get into the same ring with Callahan. I will match Callahan against Dyson at any weight suitable to the latter and for any amount which the latter's manager cares to post." Joe also states that he would like to match Callahan against Jimmy Walsh, Al. Delmont or any man in the country. Kind of looks as though Young Dyson had a plain case of cold feet.

Bob Moha and Billy Papke, claimants of the middleweight title, are booked to meet in the main bout at the Armory A. A. next Tuesday evening. It is doubtful if either one of the two men can make the middleweight limit and do justice to themselves. Moha, it is a cinch, cannot make the weight. He has had two chances to prove this to the public and has failed upon each occasion. His opportunity to prove to the boxing followers of the country that he could make the middleweight limit and be strong was when he was matched to fight Johnny Thompson at New Orleans. A few days before the fight was to have taken place, Moha's manager announced that his man had broken his hand and asked for a week's postponement. This was granted.

Then the matchmaker of the club asked Moha to post a forfeit to make weight, but he refused, and the match was called off. A few weeks ago he was matched by the Armory A. A. to meet Frank Klaus at the middleweight limit and the day the bout was to have taken place he notified the club officials that he had injured his hand and asked to have the bout postponed three days. This Klaus and the club officials agreed to do. The day the fight was to have taken place Moha's manager announced that his man would not be able to go on, as his hand was still troubling him. Klaus instead fought Sullivan.

Moha will undoubtedly go through with his end of the agreement next week, as he is not required to make the weight, but if Papke should endeavor to make him weigh in at the middleweight limit, watch for the announcement that Moha has injured his hand.

These are troublesome days for the Harvard football coaches. What is regarded as one of the hardest battles of the year is the Brown game Saturday. The Brunonians are regarded by the Harvard coaches as one of the strongest teams on their schedule this year. After the Brown battle has been fought Harvard will play its first game of the season on foreign soil at Princeton, N. J. After the Princeton game the Carlisle Indians face Harvard in the Stadium and Dartmouth is next on the schedule. Yale, of course, follows Dartmouth. But the one important game just now is the Brown contest.

GROTON LOSES GAME TO LAWRENCE TEAM

GROTON, Oct. 26. Lawrence Academy defeated Groton School here, 6 to 0, in their annual game. Neither side was able to score until the first of the fourth period, when Burke, who had missed two previous field goals, kicked two field goals from the twenty-five and forty-yard lines, respectively, scoring the only points of the game for Lawrence.

FENNO FIVE IS A SPEEDY ONE

By JIMMY MURPHY.

The Fenno Five, last year one of the best basketball teams in the State, will be on the floor again this season with veterans in the line-up. It is the intent of Manager Frank Johnson to give his men an early start and he is anxious to hear from some of the best teams in the State.

With Vic Carpenter, "Okie" O'Connor, Bill Alexander, Foster, Bob Allen, Jack O'Connor and Hayes ready to start the season, the prospects for another good year look bright. Bill Huddleston, who last year captained the five, may not play this year, and his loss will be greatly felt.

The Boylston team will practice with the Fenno Five at the new hall which has been secured by Manager Johnson. The Boylstons established quite a record on the floor last year and should be good practice mates for the Fennos. All veterans make up the Boylston team, with Gavan and Johnson forwards, [illegible] and Mosey [illegible] and Cannon at the pivot position.

A strong five has been organized at Cambridge under the name of the Cambridge Five. The [illegible] has always been represented [illegible] strong five [illegible] basketball circles and [illegible] going for the best teams in the State. Hunter, who last year was the star [illegible] on the Red Sox, will play that position for this team, with Ames and Edwards taking care of the forward positions. Dunn and Ramsey, two of the best known amateur stars in the State, will make up the backfield.

The Lenox A. C. is ready to start the season with the best teams in the State. The team will be represented with a strong line-up of veterans and a good squad of subs to fill in at a minute's notice. Following are the men in the line-up: [illegible] and Labena, backs; Mason, centre, and Sabenagay and Gentle as the forwards.

Games Wanted.

The Kendall Bible Class of Cambridge would like to arrange games with the strongest fives in the State away from home. The team averages 130 pounds. Manager F. Marmer, No. 16 St. Paul street, Cambridge.

The Alpine Five are out to meet the fastest 125-pound fives in the State paying a reasonable guarantee. All games away from home [illegible] January 20. Manager [illegible] No. 100 [illegible] street, [illegible], Boston.

The Chelsea Gym Intermediate Five would like games away from home with fast 100-110-pound teams. Manager Edward M[illegible], Chelsea Y. M. C. A., Chelsea.

The Cambridge Five, with a strong team on the floor, would like to hear from the best teams in the State averaging [illegible] pounds. Any manager desiring games write to Manager D. R. [illegible], No. 134 Summer street, Boston.

The Lenox A. C. want games with 100-110-pound teams on Tuesday evenings only. Manager Jack [illegible], No. [illegible] street, [illegible], Boston.

Art in Etching

If you wish to be handed down to posterity in the new method you must be etched.

These pictures, when the work of an artist are satisfying. The etcher studies his subject as for a portrait, making various sketches and poses. The finished picture is then done in dry-point etching directly on copper.

This differs from the ordinary etching, which is impressed on a gelatinous substance and eats into the plate. Naturally it requires much skill, and in the hands of an amateur is disappointing.

About a dozen prints can be made from the plate, or if one wishes to have it engraved on steel as many can be had as desired. The artist proofs are more desirable.

The artist does his own printing, usually on parchment paper in grays or browns, according to the taste of the patron, and the picture when well framed is more satisfactory both as likeness and work of art than the average portrait in oils or water colors.

It is diffi[illegible] coloring faithfully, which often [illegible] from the work of an artist skilled in c[illegible]ing expression. This difficulty is overcome in the etched portrait, yet the same expression of temperament is possible as in a painting. The etching is less mechanical than the photograph, however successful, and the finish is softer.

ADVICE.

"The edge of a razor," said the garrulous barber, "improves by laying it aside for a time."

"That being the case," rejoined the victim in the chair, "I'd advise you to lay aside the one you are using for two thousand years."

HICTANER

The Man That Lived in the Water—One of the Strangest Stories Ever Written

By Jean de la Hire

TO-DAY'S INSTALMENT

Copyright, 1911, by American-Journal-Examiner.

"Listen to me, monsieur. No, I do not love you. If you had made your avowal yesterday instead of to-day I might have answered otherwise. I might have said: 'Although I have never felt anything but an absolute indifference for you, I may perhaps love you some day. Let us wait.'

"Yesterday I might have said that, because yesterday I did not know.

"To-day I know.

"To-day I should be false to us both if I gave you the least hope. To-day I can say to you finally:

"'I do not love you, M. Severac, and I never can love you.'"

She was silent. Severac paled at the words which, coming from the mouth of an innocent young girl, were only natural, cruel as they would have been on the part of a more experienced woman.

It seemed to him as if his blood stopped in his veins. While he had not hoped that his love would be immediately returned he had hardly expected such a final "No."

It was as if he were shot. His dumfoundment did not last long, however. Severac was a man of force. He took hold of himself. "I have a rival. Who? I must find out."

Did Not See Look of Hate

Goaded on by a new and profound desire, all powerful with vengeance, he lifted up his head once more, looked at Moisette and, fixing his eyes intently upon the calm eyes of the young girl, he said, dryly:

"Why could you have given me hope yesterday, and why am I so definitely refused to-day? What have you seen? What have you learned in a few hours to so enlighten your heart and formulate your desires?"

"Monsieur, I am not obliged to confide my heart's secrets to you. I will not answer you.

"You say you love me. Very well, then, prove it by keeping silence hereafter. For my part, I will forget to-day's conversation, but if it should be repeated I shall be obliged to speak to my father. M. Severac, I beg now that you will leave me. The siesta hour is passed and my father and uncle must be expecting you in the laboratory."

She was silent and she was afraid.

Severac looked at her so rudely that she seemed already to see herself seized and taken away with him into the gulfs of the open sea at their feet.

She drew slowly back in Aurora's Chair and opened her mouth to cry out.

A gesture from Severac calmed her, however. The engineer had had momentarily the impulse to spring upon the young girl, to seize her and to roll with her from the overhanging cliff into the deep sea, but he saw his own folly and controlled himself.

He saw that Moisette was about to scream.

If she did and was heard, all was lost for him. So he bowed and raised two beseeching hands. In a broken voice he said:

"Mademoiselle, I love you. Perhaps your mind is not as clearly made up as you think it is. I will wait; I will wait!"

LADY DUFF-GORDON'S NEW EVENING GOWNS.

The black net dress, the new lily crepe dress and the shoes for the new style slit gown are described in SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

The young girl tried to answer, but she had not the strength.

Severac had turned. He went toward the trap door and, fortunately for Moisette, she did not see the fierce look of hatred return to his face, nor hear the harsh words he uttered. If she had seen and heard, she would have been afraid. She would have told her father all.

Knew Past Was Lost

When Severac had disappeared, Moisette sank back into Aurora's Chair and, with her elbows on her knees, her head in her hands, she abandoned herself completely to the nervous reaction which always follows any great crisis of passion or of will.

While the tears trickled through her fingers, she saw again the events of this memorable day, of this day which was the beginning for her of a new life.

She knew now that her past was lost forever in the fog of things which have been but can never be again.

The confidences Martha had made, the vision of the young man of the sea, the avowals of Severac were now the three imperishable boundaries where her old life stopped and her new one began.

On the desolate rocks of the Lost Isle, just as it happens in the tumult of great cities, the woman of to-morrow had taken the place of the young girl of yesterday.

Deep in Aurora's Chair, Moisette sat a long time asking herself what the outcome of these unexpected events was to be.

Madame Martha's confidences showed her that love often comes as a doom to its tortured victims. On the contrary, the books she had read revealed to her that sometimes love gives happiness.

Was Moisette to be Severac's unfortunate victim, or the mysterious young man's well beloved?

Also, would she ever see him again—this being who had risen from the sea, like the mythical half-gods of other days?

Where was he?

Did he live in the water?

How?

He Was a Man

In spite of everything he was a man, equal in beauty to those admirable statues which Moisette had seen pictured in a mythology in the library.

Would she ever see him again?

This thought drew Moisette's gaze toward the sea. She raised her head and opened her great eyes, wet with tears. She immediately uttered a cry, and a great joy, warm as a ray of sunshine, penetrated her body and soul.

Before her, on the edge of the rock, the marvelous young man with silver scales was standing gazing sadly upon her, with his outstretched hands filled with magnificent pearls.

"You! You!" stammered Moisette.

"You see me at last!" exclaimed Hictaner. "I have been here a long time. I watched those drops of water, which means that one is in pain, falling through your pink fingers from your eyes.

"I know about them, for since this morning I have had a strange pain, and drops of burning water, quite different from the waters of the sea, came from under my eyelids. Perhaps they came from my heart!"

She looked at him in ecstasy, and his strange words were celestial music to her ears.

He went on:

"What is your dear name? You must be a daughter of the men, and the men have a name like the things of sea and earth. What is the name by which they describe you?"

To be Continued To-morrow.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

NOT WORTH MOURNING FOR

Dear Miss Fairfax.

I am eighteen. A very attractive man of twenty-two called on me five times, and in that short time we grew to know each other very well. He got a position in another city, and said he would write me about it, but it is over three months and I have not heard a word.

I am fond of him, and will you tell me if it would be proper for me to send him a postal or letter?

WAITING ANXIOUSLY.

My dear girl, I can't tell you how hard it is for me to answer your question which, alas! is such a frequent one. There may be an explanation of his conduct, but he alone can make it. It is the custom for the man to make the advances, therefore, you must wait for him to write.

If he does not break the silence it may be some consolation to you to know that a man who can treat a woman in this fashion is not worthy of any woman's love and could never make her happy.

LOVE IS THE TEST

Dear Miss Fairfax.

I am in love with a girl of eighteen who is nine years my junior, and am sure she loves me dearly. We are engaged to be married on her nineteenth birthday. Does age or nationality count for anything when love is true, as ours surely is? Her father claims she is too young to marry and my friends are teasing me.

CONSTANT READER.

Nationality, age and character are great factors in marriage. However this depends entirely upon the persons concerned. If you understand this young girl's character and know it conforms with your own, age and nationality are secondary considerations. Age is eliminated the moment friendship is established, and nationality does not interfere with marital happiness where sympathy and congeniality exist.

Do not hesitate to marry this young girl if you feel that you can make her happy and your love is reciprocated.

TOO EARLY TEACHING COSTS YOUR CHILD 1-3 ITS LIFE.

So says Dr. Guy Potter Benton, the new president of the University of Vermont, thereby upsetting the new system of creating infant prodigies. See SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

The Daughter of the House as Saint Cecelia

There stands in one corner of the Lysander John Appleton parlor (or perhaps it would be more truthful to say "the Daysey Mayme Appleton parlor," since her father is seldom permitted to enter it except for family reunions and funerals) a battered and storm-tossed piano that which remains in spite of its years a willing interpreter of Mozart and Beethoven. And also of a composer named Mendelssohn, a favorite with girls because he once wrote a wedding march.

There hangs above the piano a picture of a woman with her hands crossed and her eyes rolled to the ceiling, and those of profane minds like Lysander John wonder if she is looking for cobwebs, but she isn't; she looks to the ceiling for inspiration, and she is known as Saint Cecelia, the goddess of every girl whose musical abilities are so great she can play with her hands crossed.

Needless to say she is the goddess of Daysey Mayme, and when a guest is present and Daysey Mayme sits down to play and looks at the Saint, and the Saint looks at the ceiling, and Mr. and Mrs. Lysander John look at Daysey Mayme, it makes a delightful picture of inspiration and adoration. This is one of the rare occasions when Lysander John is permitted in the parlor.

The guest is seated between the father and mother for punctuation purposes. You don't understand? Then listen while we explain:

"Play 'The Storm,' darling," the mother will say, and Daysey Mayme, after twisting the piano stool higher that she may twist it lower, and after removing her rings that her hands may not be handicapped by their weight in their whirlwind of action, begins. Her hands fly like chickens before a wind.

"That's the thunder. Isn't it grand?" says the mother, punching the guest in the right side.

"Just hear that high wind," says Lysander John, enthusiastically, punching the caller on the left.

Then Daysey Mayme crosses her hands and touches the minor chords. "That's the lull; I can almost see the cows starting home," says the mother, giving her guest a dig in the ribs.

"Ah!" says Lysander John, smacking his lips, "the storm is beginning again. Here is where you hear a crashing of the trees in the forest," giving his guest a poke with his elbow in her liver.

And she is punctuated with nudges and shoves and digs, to emphasize lightning, the first patter of rain, the hail, the grumbling of thunder in the distance, and the final dying away of the storm, till her sides are black and blue and she is reduced to the stage where only a doctor with poultices and liniment and surgeon's plaster can keep her from falling apart.

Some of these days all those guests who have been victims of this modern Saint Cecelia, and of all other modern Saint Cecelias, will rise in rebellion and give a storm that will be more like the real thing than even Daysey Mayme's rendition.

Will proud parents take warning?

A Border Design

An effective design that can be adapted to various-sized borders merely by increasing the size of the scrolls can easily be drawn without a pattern.

Make a series of large S-es, connected by making an extra curve from the inner point of S, bringing it up to form the lower curve up the next S above and below.

To work these scrolls have the connecting line from the bulged part of each letter traced on each side with oval sections like laurel leaves conventionalized. These are outlined or can be done in satin stitch into the central vein. The rest of the scrolls are made entirely of detached eyelets of equal size and rather small.

DANGERS OF FAT
HOW FAT AFFECTS THE LUNGS
How many people suffering from excess of fat can expand their lungs to fullest extent—giving to their bodies an abundance of fresh air? The short, panting breath of obesity makes the heart work faster, sending the blood through veins and arteries at double pressure, giving no time for proper nourishment of the body. And all because the lungs are crowded with rolls of fat that prevent smooth, easy breathing. How much better to dissolve the fat, and allow the system to produce compact muscle. This is accomplished surely and harmlessly through Marmola Prescription Tablets. These convenient little tablets are the condensed form of that famous Marmola Prescription which for years has proved so harmless and effective in reducing fat people to slimness. The steady even reduction is accomplished, without dieting or exercise, allowing you to live as you like, eat what you like and still lose 10 to 16 oz. a day. Marmola Prescription Tablets are for sale by all druggists or the Marmola Co., 77 Monroe Ave., Detroit, Mich., at 75c for a large case. If getting too fat for comfort, buy a case today.

What Would Be Your Three Wishes?

Some of the Best Replies by the American's Readers

SUPPOSE a good fairy should suddenly appear and offer to grant you three wishes, what would you ask for, Mr. Man?

What would be your three little requests, Mrs. Woman?

Thousands of readers of this paper have sent in replies to these questions, and their letters have formed a human document of remarkable interest, for they have lifted for an instant the veil of reserve with which we cover our hearts, and for a moment we have glimpsed our neighbors as they are.

For none of us are satisfied. No matter how much we have, there is something else we lack to make us happy—something more that we would ask of fate if we might. So the poor have written that they would ask for money; the rich that they would ask for children or love; the old that they might be young again; the young that they might have fame; the sick would ask for health, and the strong and well for automobiles and pleasure boats and the ability to travel; the lonely would ask for lovers; the homely for beauty, and the beauties for some charm that would keep their good looks from ever fading.

And so the letters have run, but the vast majority of them have expressed a desire for health, wealth and love, the three things that would probably come nearer than anything else really to securing happiness to an individual, and the three things that, paradoxically enough, never seem to go together, and that no one person is ever blessed enough to possess at the same time.

Wants a Divorce

One man, who illustrates Dr. Johnson's famous dictum that a second marriage is the triumph of hope over experience, writes: "I wish, first, that I had enough money to get a divorce from my present wife.

"Second, I wish that I might meet up with a nice, sweet, pretty young lady who would fall in love with me and marry me.

"Third, I wish that I had enough money to keep a good home on."

Another man, evidently a youth, writes: "If I had my three wishes I would ask for fame, for applause and for plenty to eat. I feel that I am a musical and financial genius, but I am not able to make enough money to properly feed myself, and I cannot develop my talents unless my body is sufficiently nourished."

This Girl Wants Glory

Miss Elsie W. is a young lady who doesn't wish for much here below, but wishes that little of first-class quality.

She says: "I am a constant reader of the AMERICAN, and I read about the three wishes and thought I would send in mine. The first one is glory, the second health and the third happiness. These, I think, are the best I could wish for. A great many girls and women would wish for money and beautiful dresses and diamonds, but I do not think they bring happiness."

H. G. Fergus is beautifully altruistic in his wishes. He says:

"My first wish would be for the establishment of ideal conditions for children. To accomplish this means to commence at the beginning by giving every prospective mother the right care, such as medical attention, food, air, light, heat, clothing, suitable environment and ease of mind.

"The one idea being to bring into this world a new inhabitant under the most favorable conditions. The newborn babe should also be under the same eye of supervision until it goes to school, when the State should see that the child has proper food. A child's teeth, eyes, nose, lungs and stomach, as well as its brains, should be properly looked after.

"My third and last wish would be the opportunity to develop all the branches of the mechanical world to their fullest extent."

Mr. George M. Wickesser, who is an inventor, wants to emulate that other eminent inventor, Mr. Edison, in breaking the age record. He writes:

Would Live Long

"My first wish is that I remain in good mental and physical condition and live until the year 2011, so that I can see what progress has done for humanity.

"My second wish is to see every human being living in luxury.

"My third wish is to see the organizing of the International Inventors' Association with the aid of the Hearst newspapers in the United States."

This is the season of the year when a woman's fancy fondly turns to thoughts of Fall millinery, and a man who has evidently been asked by his wife and daughters to come across with the price of an imported confection from Paris, writes the following note, which is simply surcharged with feeling. He says:

"Dear Madame:

PART ONE—(Continued)

"THAT'S good," he said. "I like to hear you arm-chair sportsmen talk; have you ever seen your slightly ridiculous herbivore in the open—have you ever seen a great bull rhino charging down on you like an express engine and know that it was invulnerable to pain or fear or to anything but the dead shot you may not have the nerve or the skill to fire? I tell you, there is no nerve tension like it in the world. I'll thank you to tell me then which seems the more ridiculous, your puny man, cordite rifle and all, or your bull rhino, half blind as it is and mad with fear and knowing only the impulse to destroy, breaking down the fifty-yard limit with the impact of three tons behind it?"

Baring Angry

Baring flushed. He looked and felt angry; for the moment he forgot that this man was his host, that he had been drinking; above all, that he was the husband of the woman who looked across the flowers and the lights of the table at him with anxious, pleading eyes

"As you say, I have had much experience of big game shooting, but I can handle my gun as cleanly as the average English sportsman, and I hope that even within the fifty-yard limit I should not feel ridiculous, however ridiculous I might look."

It was unmistakable even to Martindale that he had gone a little too far. He adopted a conciliatory, even an apologetic tone.

"My dear chap, one would think I was casting aspersions on your shooting," he said. "The boot's on the other leg—my wish is for you to go home fairly glutted with sensations, and unless you've seen some sort up here it seems to me you might as well have exhausted Cook's ticket pottering about one of the towns on the coast."

Already Baring had regretted the slight display of temper into which wounded vanity had betrayed him.

"Thanks, you're very good," he said. "If I don't go home chock and block with West African sensations, it won't be your fault. But I'm looking forward to some shooting—you were talking the other day of an expedition a couple of days up country. If you're still keen on it, I'm game. I want it—want it badly."

"Right." Martindale brought down his hand on the table with a thud that made the glasses ring. "We'll settle up to-night, shall we? Before the weather breaks—it's getting a bit unsettled—that storm to-day and all—there's no earthly reason why we shouldn't make a start first thing to-morrow."

Made Him Pause

There was an alertness, something that might almost have been called eagerness, in his manner that contrasted markedly with his last attitude. Baring could not have failed to notice it. It made him, half-unconsciously, pause perceptibly before replying. Into this pause the woman's voice broke softly.

"You two utterly selfish men—you appear to leave me entirely out of your calculations. But I refuse to be left out. Mr. Baring—I cannot possibly let you go to-morrow. I have my own little plans for to-morrow."

"What cursed nonsense!" Martindale rapped out. "You've had Mr. Baring hanging around your skirts most of his time already!"

He paused. Kitty's eyes met his with a steady, sobering glance. So the dead man had insulted her, not once, but many times, before their guests. But Martindale's words might have been the merest pleasantry when she spoke again.

"Am I to spoil sport? I am so sorry, Mr. Baring. But really—couldn't you be more profitably employed than in assisting my husband in his determined effort to exterminate the fauna of Nokyoro?"

"What—you among the cranks, Mrs. Saxe! I refuse to believe it!"

"Oh, no," she shook her head slowly, her eyes fixed, not on his face, but on the darkening face of her husband. "It is not that. I have no principles in the matter, I assure you. It is the uncertainty of the sport that appalls my woman's timidity, that is all. There is a deadly element of the uncertain in big game shooting in Africa. As I have heard it horribly and tersely put, 'There's the breath of the Great Silence hot in the rush of your charging rhino's onslaught.'"

Chilled His Smile

There was something in her voice that chilled the smile on Baring's lips.

It was one of those moments when there comes to a man the realization that tragedy has come into his company, scarce hidden behind a trivial mask. Some instinct he could not have explained told Baring that he was a partaker in one of those dramatic moments that dramatists call "a situation."

Martindale said not a word. His blue eyes looked back into Kitty's gray ones, and it seemed to her that there was hatred in their steady glance.

It was the most bitter of the many disillusionments of his brief married life. Not that John Martindale had recognized her quotation of the half-caste's words—but that he had been fully determined to act upon them.

He did not follow them on to the veranda, where they usually drank their coffee, but delayed in the dining room on some pretext or another. For a while he could hear him moving restlessly about the room. Then all sound ceased.

The moonlight falling through the leaves of the slow-moving creepers with which the veranda was overrun made a curious, ceaselessly moving pattern on the floor. The noises from the distant swamp sounded very distinctly in the stillness, the croaking of the frogs, the occasional barking cough of the crocodile. Kitty sat very still, staring out into the moonlight, unconscious of the presence of the man beside her for the moment till Baring's voice, low-pitched and rather hesitating, brought her back to a sense of her surroundings with a start.

"Mrs. Saxe, I am most awfully sorry. Of course, if you do not want me to go"——

He stopped abruptly, for Martindale had come to the window of the dining room and called his wife by name.

Interrupts Confidences

Kitty turned in the low basket chair and looked back at Martindale with a certain reluctance as he stood framed in the window silhouetted against the lamplight that the strong white glare of the moon made pale and ineffectual.

"Kitty, I want you. Excuse us for a moment, Baring. There is something I wished to show my wife."

There was a new note in her husband's voice that thrilled Kitty with sense akin to fear. She rose reluctantly and followed him where he led, across the dining room through the veranda-like passage to her bedroom.

It was absurd. Why should she be afraid of him? Why should the mere fact that he did not speak, that he had closed the door behind them and turned the key in the lock frighten her? Yet it did frighten her. She felt as though this man was a stranger, that his personality covered a hundred terrifying possibilities.

For a second he stood staring at her; then: "So you have taken to spying on me?" he said.

"No." She did not for a moment affect to misunderstand him. "I was in the godown; I had taken refuge from the storm"—— She stopped; he was looking at her with an expression of contemptuous incredulity. "No; why should I condescend to explain? I was not spying upon you nor eavesdropping. I overheard, and thank God I did overhear."

"Why this outburst of pious gratitude, and why did you insult me at my own table before this man?"

She looked at him pitifully for a moment. His lips had tripped over the words "my own table," and his face twitched.

Heart Was Throbbing

"Jack, do you do well to be angry with me?" she asked in a low voice. "Do you wish to add murder to the tale of our sins?"

Martindale stared at her. His heart was throbbing now fast, now slow. It seemed to be beating in his throat.

The intolerable injustice of it—that was the thought that gripped him. The intolerable injustice that this woman, for whom he had sinned, who had tempted him to his undoing, who had robbed him of good name, of faith, of honor, should dare to speak to him thus—cast the word "sins" in his teeth!

"You—say this to—me," he stuttered. "You dragged us into this net—it must be cut somehow."

"Jack! But not by murder!"

There was horror in her voice—in her eyes.

"Murder—who spoke of murder?" he said quickly.

"Jack, don't try to fence with me. I heard what that man said. 'There's no mercy in Africa but death.' For God's sake, send that man away. This Gomez—what is his influence over you? He is degrading you—you are changed.

"I don't know what I dread, only—worse things than murder."

The strain of the day had robbed her of the power to control herself. She had meant to say nothing, and now, in a flood of passionate phrases, she was speaking out all the fears that until now she had refused to admit even to her own heart.

Martindale listened to her for a moment in silence, his eyes wavering like a man threatened by panic. Then, on the spur of an uncontrollable impulse, he raised his hand and struck her across the mouth.

* * * * *

The moonlight crept up over the floor of the bedroom in a broad white flood; outside one-half of the garden already was under a dense, black shadow, and on the veranda the profusion of coreopsis was growing less fine and filigree-like. The veranda was empty. Laurence Baring had long since sought protection in the mosquito-proof drawing room against the too persistent attentions of that deadly pest.

Got Out the Banjo

He wondered what had become of his hostess—he had seen his host cross the veranda hastily nearly half an hour ago and disappear toward the compound as though the Furies pursued him.

"'Give strong drink unto him that is ready to perish and wine unto those that be heavy of heart,'" he muttered, with a cynical smile. "It is evident that our friend Saxe has taken to heart the somewhat indiscreet advice tendered by that excellent woman, the mother of King Lemuel."

He got out the banjo from its corner and began to thrum it softly. It was dull in the drawing room, as it always was dull for him wherever Mrs. Saxe was not. He felt a painfully distinct longing for the forbidden thing, for the soft warmth of a woman's nearness, the perfume of her hair, the seductive glamour that emanated from this other man's wife that threatened to blot all the world for him.

His fingers twitched out the cheap little melody of a hackneyed song:

Knowest thou what the pretty flowers
Tender, secretly, would say?
Ah! Thou shalt dream of me the night

SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

Max De Lipman a True Man

By THOMAS TAPPER

I.

ON the 7th of August, 1911, there died at Graz, Austria, a man who was essentially great, true to himself and to his calling.

His name was Max De Lipman. He was by birth a baron, but he preferred not to use the title, and to live among his associates as a man successful in his calling. He was the foremost newspaper illustrator in the United States, when, in 1898, he was stricken with paralysis.

Then he became paralyzed, his speech was affected, and his right hand and arm became useless. What did he do?

He patiently set himself to work to study drawing again WITH HIS LEFT HAND. This task, this going to school to master the other side of his body, while trying to adjust himself to life with half his body stricken with uselessness, took eighteen months. Then he went back to his desk again.

Up to the time of his death he worked with the same enthusiasm that made him determined to conquer his left hand. It is said of him that he made pen and ink sketches of more men in public life than any other living artist.

It is often impressive to read what men do in affliction. Such stories always move us. We are apt to think that they belong to other days, and are to be found only in books. But here is a case that in recent days was going on right here among us. Max De Lipman, from the day of his physical misfortune in 1898, was solving as difficult a task as falls to any man.

Sir Walter Scott had to face it when, with body broken in health, he undertook to wipe off an indebtedness of hundreds of thousands of dollars with his power of imagination. Beethoven, absolutely deaf for a quarter of a century, went on undaunted, writing the music that he could not hear save in imagination that gave it birth.

Laura Bridgman, deprived of nearly all her senses, rose to conquer her limitations to such an extent that her case, like that of Helen Keller of to-day, became known the world over. No writing of Charles Dickens is more interesting than is that chapter in his American Notes that relates his impressions of Miss Bridgman's attainment.

It is a wonderful privilege to have a body finely attuned, in splendid condition, capable of responding to any demand we make on it. But we must always remember that back of the body there is the mind, ready and capable of speaking its message, even though the body on which it has depended is suddenly bruised and broken.

Men who face affliction and rise superior to it, are they who realize the supremacy of the mind. If one cylinder of their engine breaks down in mid-ocean, they proceed to come in slowly under reduced steam.

BUT THEY COME IN.

1. It is easy to learn to depend on outside helps, and to overlook the mind power that is the one real thing.

Max De Lipman kept his title of baron hidden, and offered himself to the world on the basis of his genius and attainment as an artist.

2. It is easy, when affliction overtakes us, to sit down in the wreck of our own body, and give up, losing sight of the very power that makes the body act—namely, the power of the mind.

Max De Lipman did not recognize his affliction, EXCEPT SO FAR AS TO FIND IN IT AN INSPIRATION. An inspiration to throw it aside, to forget it, to sit down patiently and to begin once more, steadily teaching the left hand that degree of skill and cunning that affliction had forever taken away from his wonderful right hand.

3. The bill-boards scattered over the fields of America, teach us a bad lesson. We learn from them, almost unconsciously, to advertise ourselves in big type.

Max De Lipman, and great men of his kind, go on quietly, do good work, however they may be forced to accomplish it, and let the work speak for itself.

No young American boy or girl who grasps the essential facts of this man's success and struggle can fail to realize that a great man is a simple man who regards the body as the servant of the mind.

A Gift

A DEEP sigh of sorrow broke from the lips of little Freddie Stockman.

"I wish," he said plaintively—"I wish I was Billy Smith!"

His mother was astounded—shocked.

"Why, Freddie?" she asked. "Billy Smith has none of the nice things you have. He doesn't get any pocket-money. And he isn't as big as you, and he's not nearly so strong. His father never buys him presents, or"——

"Yes, I know all about that," said Freddie. "But"——

"And then look what a nice home you have, and nice books, and you never have to go out when it's cold and wet to carry papers, and"——

"Yes! I know that," said Freddie irritably, annoyed at his mother's strange lack of sympathy and understanding. "But Billy can wiggle his ears, and I can't."

Tinware Wisdom

Cheap tinware is sure to prove the most expensive, for it can not resist rust. Tinware pressed into shape and stamped by machinery is so thinned in spots that rust is sure to eat through in a short time. The only tinware you can really afford to buy is made of the best materials and no spot is weakened by the process.

MASON'S TIN-WARE

is made for service. Only heavy charcoal tin plate is used, and that is coated with pure tin. The tin comes to you with all its natural strength, for it is not pulled and stretched in manufacture. You can tell by the touch the difference in strength and weight between Mason's wares and ordinary flimsy dishes stamped and drawn out of coke tin or adulterated tin.

The best department, hardware and housefurnishing stores carry Mason's Tinware.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

It seems to be in the air that the trustees of the Massachusetts Electric Companies will shortly announce a plan for an early payment of the 17.75 accumulative dividends on the preferred stock. The sharp figurers say the preferred is still worth 105 and the common 30. It really makes the preferred a 5 per cent. stock if it is paid in preferred stock, and with a surplus now applicable to the common and with an increase in business the common has great speculative possibilities, and the Exchange, which is somnolent, needs such a start.

The recent annual report of the Erie Railroad surely warrants optimism. In many respects it is a surprising document; and perhaps the most surprising item in it is the increase in the average train load from the previous high record of 494.87 tons to 521.17 tons. The average train load for all roads in the United States is only about 370 tons; and this increase makes Erie's load one of the heaviest in the United States. So many tons of freight per train has a strong tendency to reduce the average cost of handling each ton.

Dividend and interest disbursements for November, according to the Journal of Commerce compilation, will amount to $118,829,239, an increase of $3,782,000 over last year. The compilation does not include dividends by banks or trust companies or interest payments by the national and State governments, counties and municipalities, but only the disbursements by railroad and industrial companies. Although several dividends have been reduced this year the increases outnumber decreases, and there will be an increase of about $800,000 in dividend payments.

$ $ $

Value of the Great Northern Ore certificates has become a matter of dispute among persons who believe they know something about iron ore. The general opinion seems to be that these certificates will decline sharply in quoted price, as a result of the cancellation of the lease. A view largely favored is that the cancellation is a double "bluff" on the part of the Steel Trust. It might serve to prevent government action on account of alleged monopoly of ore lands and to cause the Ore trustees to give the trust a lower freight rate than 80 cents per ton on ore hauled from the property. The Steel Trust proposes to reduce the rate on ore 20 cents a ton over its own roads. These roads compete with the Great Northern in the handling of ore, but under the lease all the ore taken from the Great Northern lands must be hauled over the Great Northern Railroad and the Steel Trust must pay to the Ore trustees 80 cents a ton in addition to the royalty. This 80 cents is to pay for freight, but it is paid to the trustees and not to the railroad company. A reduction of the freight rate on the Steel Trust roads would make the 80-cent charge look unfair, and might possibly furnish a basis for an appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

$ $ $

A new set of Sherman law conspirators will probably be exposed by the government in the near future, when the jobbing conspirators are prosecuted, as they must be under President Taft's order to enforce the Sherman law. Each important industry of the country has a jobbing trade and these jobbers are organized into conspiracies, as the result of which they demand from manufacturers certain percentages for handling their output. The rubber jobbers, for instance, demand and receive discounts from the list prices of about 16 per cent.

The steady but quiet absorption of high-grade bonds by investors and the absence of any new issues is being reflected in a gradual shrinkage in the supply held by bankers and bond dealers.

Supplies of first mortgage railroad bonds are so small that any large order probably would cause a sharp increase in the price of the issue desired. Some dealers believe this will tend to divert investment into second-grade bonds, that is, issues easily earning their interest charges, but which are not as well secured as first-class bonds.

Insurance companies continue to adhere to the policy of investing their surplus funds in real estate mortgages, but most of the companies are so particular regarding this class of security that dealers expect they, too, also will enter the market for railroad and industrial bonds.

STEEL RUMORS STIR MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Speculative interests were apparently uncertain at the opening of the stock market to-day with the result that an irregular tone prevailed. Canadian Pacific and Southern Railway, each of which advanced ½, showed the best gains in the initial trading.

United States Steel common opened ⅛ up, while the preferred was unchanged. Reports that the directors of the Steel Trust would hold a special meeting at the close of the market to consider the segregation of the Tennessee Coal & Iron properties, and possibly to consider resignations from the board, caused considerable comment among traders.

Norfolk & Western, which has been particularly strong for the past few days, was the weakest feature, going to 106½.

Just what action the Department of Justice may take in the organization of the American Tobacco Company was a cause for hesitancy on the part of traders, although the belief prevailed in some quarters that the plan filed by the corporation eventually would be changed at the instance of the department.

Rock Island preferred showed firmness. Amalgamated Copper was ⅛ up, while American Smelting lost ⅛. Erie and Reading were unchanged; Missouri Pacific, Erie preferred and Union Pacific were each off ⅛. Baltimore & Ohio gained ¼. At the end of fifteen minutes trading a better tone was shown, and the leading issues had made gains from the opening range. The curb opened irregular. Americans in London were firm on narrow trading. Canadian Pacific was strong on covering in London.

CLARK MANSION OPEN TO PUBLIC

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26.—The great mansion of William A. Clark, formerly United States Senator from Montana, at Fifth avenue and Seventy-seventh street, in New York city, a storehouse of art treasures, is to be opened to the art-loving public as soon as a suitable plan can be arranged whereby the coming of visitors will not disturb the privacy of the family while they are occupying the New York house.

Mr. Clark to-day made the announcement through an AMERICAN correspondent that his house would be a semi-public museum on stated occasions so that many might share his enjoyment of the notable collection he has been making for many years.

"I have only been in the house about four months," said Mr. Clark to-day, "but I will reopen it in December when Mrs. Clark returns from Europe.

"I do not hold that I have a right to be selfish with the objects of art I have collected.

"And when a practical plan can be worked out I intend to give the art-loving public generally an opportunity to see and, I believe, enjoy my art treasures. That is the purely art portion of the house will be opened at stated periods."

"PERSIAN HEIRESS" IS ILL FROM POISON

Physicians at the City Hospital are puzzled at the case of Miss Frieda Cory of No. 5 Oliver place, who was brought to the institution Tuesday night suffering from a dose of poison and apparently in a dying condition. Her name is still on the dangerous list, but she passed a comfortable night and may recover. Miss Cory recently announced herself as the heiress to $150,000 left to her by her uncle, Dr. Katof Maloof, for years medical adviser to the Shah of Persia.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY RETAIL BOARD

Francis P. O'Connor, proprietor of the women's specialty store, No. 157 Tremont street, and former vice-president of the board, was elected president, and Charles H. Cross of the Regal Shoe Company, vice-president.

The retiring president, John Shepard, Jr., of the Shepard Norwell Company, and Herbert R. Lane of Herbert R. Lane & Co., dealers in carpets, were elected to fill vacancies on the governing board.

In Restraint of Trade!

IT has been said that the United Shoe Machinery Company is "in restraint of trade and an injury to the Boot and Shoe Industry of Massachusetts."

Let us see about this:—

1. FOUR TIMES AS MANY MEN ARE EMPLOYED in Massachusetts in making shoe machinery as in 1899, when the Company was formed.

2. THEY RECEIVE HIGHER WAGES, are more regularly employed and work under far better conditions than was the case in 1899.

3. THE VALUE OF THE PRODUCTS of Massachusetts shoe factories INCREASED between 1900 and 1908 from $117,000,000 to $170,000,000.

4. The employes in Massachusetts shoe factories decreased between 1890 and 1900 from 67,374 to 58,645. Between 1900, one year after the Company was formed, and 1908 they INCREASED FROM 58,645 TO 69,250 and THEIR WAGES INCREASED FROM $27,745,820 TO $38,959,428.

5. The EXPORTS of boots and shoes from Massachusetts factories since 1899 have MORE THAN QUADRUPLED IN VALUE.

6. The reduction in cost of production per pair of Men's Goodyear Welt Shoes resulting from the saving made by new and improved machines and lower royalties is nearly 9 cents.

IS THIS RESTRAINT OF TRADE?

Visit the model shoe factory at the New England Fair. You will find over each of the sixty machines in operation there a plainly printed card giving the terms on which any shoe manufacturer can buy or lease it.

WEAVERS WIN BIG VICTORY

FALL RIVER, Oct. 26.—Cotton mill weavers here are rejoicing to-day over the decision of Attorney-General Swift that the "grading system," so-called, in the mills, is illegal and must be abandoned forthwith.

"The decision of the Attorney-General will mean the circulation of about $2,000 a week more in this city than heretofore," said James Whitehead, secretary of the National Federation of Weavers, and local secretary of the Weavers' Progressive Association, when apprised of the ruling that the paying of second grade prices to weavers by cotton manufacturers is equivalent to fining.

New Bedford Worst.

"Fall River manufacturers never have indulged in this close fisted method of extorting weekly tolls to any considerable extent," he said, "but even as it was, conditions were far from satisfactory here. New Bedford was the hotbed of discontent among weavers, for it was there that nearly everybody got a summary fine almost every week.

"In this city there are about 10,000 weavers. They make up the best part of the population, but their earnings, at best, are meagre. Girls weave cotton here for $6 a week and many men with families get no more than $12.

"It is about one-tenth of these that have deducted from their envelopes each week all the way from $2 to $5, and this, of course, caused not only a great deal of disappointment, but considerable suffering. Imagine a girl of her six days' task walking up to the little window and drawing $4.

"It always could be relied on that about 100 weavers in this city were short-changed like this every week and, assuming that $2 constituted the minimum of their fine, that of course would mean $2000 kept from hands that earned it.

Boon to Merchants.

"When weavers receive their pay they do not invest it in railroad stocks or government bonds. They spend it for necessities, and, naturally, when they are docked every week, they do without a great many things they need. One-tenth of the weavers in this city hereafter will get about $2 worth more of what they need every week. The ruling of the Attorney-General is thoroughly satisfactory to the toilers."

According to Secretary Whitehead, "fining" and second grade paying, which, in effect, was the same thing, was systematically arranged by expert actuaries, who kept in touch with the earnings of factories and were paid their salaries to reduce expenses as much as possible.

The news that the district police had been instructed to take action at once to put a stop to the "grading plan" was joyfully received in every mill centre in the State, according to reports received at union headquarters here.

CROWDS ATTEND TWO BIG SHOWS

The New England Industrial Exposition in Mechanics Building and the New England Fruit show in Horticultural Hall are drawing big crowds on their closing days. Many requests have come in from outsiders as well as exhibitors to extend the time for the Exposition, but this has been found impossible.

One of the novelties at the exposition will be a genuine, old-fashioned auction sale in the agricultural department. The cows, horses and prize vegetables will be sold to the highest bidder, and much fun is promised and a deal of spirited bidding. The cows are all milch cows and a valuable lot.

The announcement of the baseball game by the Western Union Telegraph Company also attracts a large crowd. For Saturday arrangements have been made to give every play of the Brown-Harvard football game in Grand Hall. Providence Day falls on that date, and more than 3,000 tickets have been spoken for.

There has been installed at Mechanics Building as an additional feature, to last throughout the week, a model voting machine, by which a mock election will be carried on. All the candidates who will be on the State ballot at the election November 7 will be listed, and every male of voting age visiting the Exposition will be allowed to cast his vote.

To get these Shears all you have to do is to present Thursday's, Friday's and Saturday's American Special Coupons (Oct. 26, Oct. 27 and Oct. 28) with 15 Cents.

These Shears are equipped with a patent tension spring which takes up all the wear on the rivet, so that the cutting edges will never wear dull. A simple turn of the little thumb screw will adjust the blades to cut anything from the thinnest and the most delicate fabric to the heaviest material. Every woman who has had the exasperating and trying experience of attempting to cut with a dull pair of shears will appreciate the value of this new invention.

Unconstitutional Conduct

Governor's Council Plays Politics With the Governor's Appointees

The Governor's Council is playing the kind of politics which may be expected from a part of the present Republican machine. Clothed with constitutional power to refuse confirmation only to the Governor's appointees who are disqualified by reason of unfitness for the office, they are now attempting to usurp the appointing power itself.

They have refused confirmation to Mr. McNamara of Haverhill, not because Mr. McNamara is unfit, for none of them would dare to say so in the face of the tremendous indorsement of business men and fellow townsmen and neighbors who know Mr. McNamara, but because they wish to keep an old political hack in the position he now holds.

They are refusing confirmation to Mr. Brown as commissioner to regulate the loan sharks, not because he is unfit, but because the loan sharks do not approve of him.

They refused to confirm Mr. Reed as clerk of a District Court, not because Mr. Reed is not fit, but because they wish to keep Mr. Williams, the present incumbent, in his place.

Wednesday they refused to confirm Professor Droppers for Mr. White's place on the Railroad Commission, not because Professor Droppers is not eminently fit, but because they wish to retain Mr. White in office, at the demand of the Republican machine and the public service corporations whose special interests Mr. White has always scrupulously conserved.

They have refused confirmation to Warren F. Spaulding to be Prison Commissioner, not because Mr. Spaulding happens to be the best informed man in the United States concerning prison reform work, but because they wish to retain in that position a Republican machine politician who "plays the game" in the interest of the stand pat element 365 days and nights during the year.

They refused to confirm Dr. Briggs for the State Board of Insanity, not because Dr. Briggs is an eminent expert on insanity and has secured this year remedial legislation aimed to prevent brutality toward the insane in our public institutions at the hands of ignorant attendants, but because they want to hold Henry F. Field in that place.

terms of office of the men whom Governor Foss seeks to dis- these appointments have expired. To retain them in office g confirmation to those appointed to displace them amounts ntial reappointment.

This is unconstitutional conduct. It is outrageous that a body of men controlled by a repudiated machine, but keeping office because the districts from which they come have been gerrymandered to nullify the will of the majority, can so embarrass every Democratic Governor who is elected and who attempts to make appointments of men who are at all touched with the spirit of the times.

This Council exists to plague progressive government, just as the House of Lords used to plague the Liberal party in England.

It will surely go the way of all old-fashioned, outworn, obstructive and useless authority. It ought to be abolished, or considerable of its authority should be taken away.

The Remarkable Speech Made by Governor Foss at the Keating Banquet; It Made a Record and Will Be Memorable

The speech made by Governor Foss at the banquet of the Charitable Irish Society at Young's Hotel, last Saturday evening, in honor of Judge Keating, is worthy of more than passing notice. It is the shortest official deliverance on record, and the pithiest.

Up to that banquet, and for more than a century, the famous Dean Swift held the record as a maker of short addresses.

The most interesting deliverance of Swift's versatile career was contained within the compass of two sentences. Speaking to a large and fashionable congregation in behalf of one of the city orphanges of Dublin, the witty dean said:

"Dearly beloved brethren, it is written that he who giveth to the poor, lendeth to the Lord. Now, if you like the security, down with the dust."

Not another word did he say. And when the collection plates were handed round by the ushers they were filled with silver and gold as never before in the cause of "Sweet Charity."

Dean Swift's sermon is now and forever more among the things of yesterday. The laurels of gifted brevity were taken by Governor Foss when he uttered at the Keating dinner this speech:

"I am willing that the appointments made by me to the Judicial Bench of Massachusetts shall stand as the monuments of my administration."

It is given to few men to say so much in a single sentence. For its fearlessness and its honesty, as for its brevity, this speech deserves to be remembered. It was a remarkable speech.

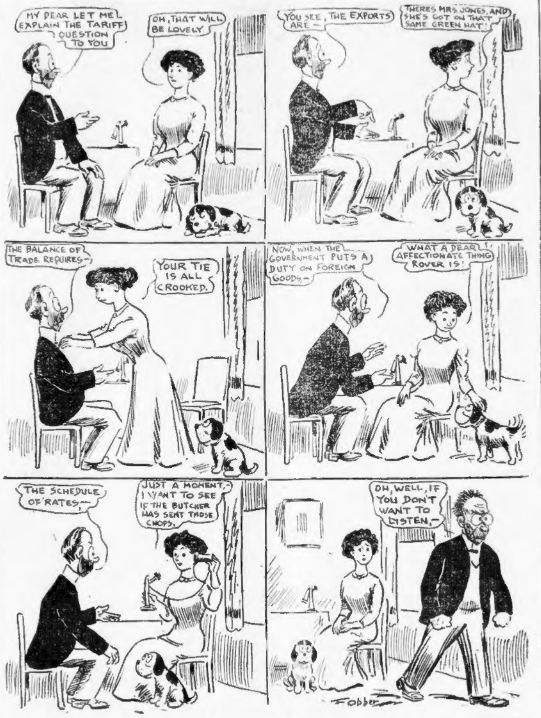
When You Want to Give Your Wife Some Valuable Information



MY DEAR LET ME EXPLAIN THE TARIFF QUESTION TO YOU
OH, THAT WILL BE LOVELY
YOU SEE, THE EXPORTS ARE—
THERES MRS JONES, AND SHE'S GOT ON THAT SAME GREEN HAT!
THE BALANCE OF TRADE REQUIRES—
YOUR TIE IS ALL CROOKED.
NOW, WHEN THE GOVERNMENT PUTS A DUTY ON FOREIGN GOODS,— WHAT A DEAR AFFECTIONATE THING ROVER IS!
THE SCHEDULE OF RATES,—
JUST A MOMENT,— I WANT TO SEE IF THE BUTCHER HAS SENT THOSE CHOPS.
OH, WELL, IF YOU DON'T WANT TO LISTEN,—

WHAT'S THAT I HEAR - A BUZZING FLY? I THOUGHT THEIR SEASON HAD GONE BY!
BUZZ-Z-Z
BUZ-Z-Z
YES THERE IT IS — THE LAST NO DOUBT! IT'S COLD - BUT I MUST CLAMBER OUT!
I'LL GET THAT FLY AND GET IT RIGHT, IF I MUST CHASE THE BEAST ALL NIGHT!
BUZ-Z-Z
IT IS A MIGHTY ACTIVE FLY BUT IT HAS SIMPLY GOT TO DIE!
THERE! - NOW WHAT D'YE THINK OF THAT! THE FLY IS FEELING PRETTY FLAT!
NOW I CAN GO TO SLEEP WITH REASON - NOTHING TO DO UNTIL NEXT SEASON!

William Randolph Hearst, Democrat

Editorial from the Los Angeles Herald, October 24, 1911.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST has returned to the Democratic party. The Herald to-day prints on this page editorial comments on this fact from various Eastern papers as news of interest to Herald readers.

The Herald disagreed with Mr. Hearst when he left the party. Now we welcome him back to the ranks of progressive Democracy. Mr. Hearst's return to the party is most opportune. It comes at a time when the control of the party is sought by both reactionaries and progressives, just as the control of the Republican party is a matter of dispute between Regulars and La Folletteers.

There is no doubt where Mr. Hearst stands, or that his attitude is for the great good and permanent salvation of the old party. Plunging into the thick of the fight against scandalous bossism of Tammany in New York, Mr. Hearst's participation in the primaries will mightily stimulate the masses of voters to free themselves from the domination of boss rule. If Mr. Hearst can purge the Democratic party of Murphyism, he will be entitled to the warm admiration of all true progressives, and will so clear the decks for action that New York State may be carried by the Democrats in 1912.

Mr. Hearst left the Democratic party because he held that the party had departed from its ancient faiths and progressive principles. He has returned to it, it is claimed, because the party has moved on to adopt his viewpoint, not that his viewpoint has changed.

Mr. Hearst was the pioneer "progressive" when that word had no application in political discussion. In the files of his newspapers years ago can be found arguments for the initiative, referendum, recall, direct primaries, election of United States Senators by the people, corrupt practices act and public ownership of public utilities. For years these principles were nailed to the masthead of his editorial pages. All of these reforms have triumphed somewhere where his editorial influence has been felt. These principles are the Herald's principles. They are the principles of the majority of the voters of this State, as has been proven by our recent election.

Elopements Then and Now

By JAMES W. M'GEE

IN early days elopers dodged the fierce parental frown
By means that look ridiculous to-day.
The lover whispered "Fly with me! The best horse in the town
Is waiting here to take us far away."
To-day the horse has lost the place he held in days of yore
When joy lay in the music of the hoof,
For now, instead of "Fly with me, the horse is at the door!"
It's "Fly with me, the aero's on the roof!"

In after years the bicycle, well named the silent steed,
Left many an angry parent far behind.
The lover whispered "Fly with me! This high-geared king of speed
Will reach some spot no prying eyes can find."
To-day the "silent steed" is dead, and heroes fret no more
O'er whirling wheels or tires puncture-proof;
For now instead of "Fly with me, the bike is at the door!"
It's "Fly with me, the aero's on the roof!"

Still later came the auto, with its fumes of gasoline;
A sure "first aid" to sweethearts in distress.
The lover whispered "Fly with me, this panting limousine
Will reach some town your folks can never guess!"
To-day the auto's doom is sealed, elopers want to soar
Where "speed cops" can't confront them with the proof,
And now instead of "Fly with me, the auto's at the door!"
It's "Fly with me, the aero's on the roof!"
